Introduction:

In this State of the Vision commentary, there is a mixture of intuitive insight tempered with the insight of experience. With this issue, Global Awakening News introduces a mixture of content that, to some, will stretch what is considered “safe conversation” in some circles. But if humanity is to “make the grade” and evolve as spiritual beings, we have to “make the stretch” and reach beyond our comfort envelopes to access the wisdom of higher consciousness. There is a need to develop transitional forms in society specifically to allow more people to step out off the insane struggle of “modern life” long enough focus on creating a new world that eventually can involve everyone. Humanity never lost its potential to grow and evolve beyond its current state of being, but millennia of separation from higher consciousness has been a serious impediment to our development as spiritual beings who, as whole, lack connection to spiritual consciousness. It is time for this to change, now. Truly enlightened solutions are essential to humanity’s future evolution. Central to humanity’s healing and evolutionary progress is everyone’s divine right to be connected to higher (spiritual) consciousness, to have access to levels of awareness and insight beyond the current limitation of human existence. Everyone.

State of the Vision and Current Situation

The end days of May and first days of June saw dramatic events, ones that have been worked toward for some time now. The main “fortifications” (think of a concrete-like shell) that have surrounded Earth with many energetic levels and that have served to isolate and imprison humanity/Earth for so long, was literally shattered and removed. The more subtle aspects of this prison structure/control matrix are now in the process of being cleared. It is now possible for the highest levels of spiritual energy to reach humanity and Earth. ... Humanity is closer than ever before to activating the most extreme consciousness and reality-shifting possibilities. It is now a matter of our intentions, first and foremost. What can we do to encourage our reconnection to higher self and higher consciousness? Humanity cannot continue in the old ways as the old ways do not offer solutions that lead to a new way of being. This shift is like learning to breathe in a whole different way a new type of atmosphere.

Origins of the Dark Force, Problems in Creation, and Where Do We Go from Here?

The major flaw in this creation actually happened billions of years ago and was not a flaw. It was an unrecognized event that contributed to the downfall of this whole sector and the introduction of darkness. Looking back from this level of creation there are several flaws that need to be addressed. ... How has this changed the interaction between us and the other light beings in creation? How do they help us now and how do we help ourselves? These are the questions that need answering and finding solutions to. I invite all of you to think on this and what your place is in the new world, new sector, new creation that we are entering into. ... What are what are we going to do with each other now?

Social-science research essays: Choice, Freewill, New Patterns, and Discernment with Compassion

We have before us a very simple proposition: If a sufficient portion of humanity as a whole proves unable to voluntarily make new choices based on a greater level of discernment on behalf of a spiritually-based and life-affirming future, then events will rapidly catalyze this process for us. However, there is no principle that says we must allow ourselves to fall into a catastrophic abyss first before deciding it is not in our best interests as human and spiritual beings. ... Humanity has lived and died and learned through physical and psychological pain and suffering to such an extent that our schools cruelly teach young people that this pattern is a natural part of “human nature.” ... Where is the turning point when people reach that place where they finally decide, “enough is enough,” and then act on new imperatives for positive change? Have we become too psychologically accustomed to operating from an illusion of the separate, individual self? ... Discernment with compassion is a relatively new vision with ancient roots. An ever-evolving broadness of mind combining the use of free-will and innate intelligence to resolve specifics within the context of an integral whole that emphasizes the interconnectedness of a greater “oneness” we all share as sentient beings in a larger cosmos of creation. ... The issues of awakened and enlightened leadership and community will be an ongoing theme in these writings.

The Energies of 7-7-7: A Composite of Information and An Invitation to All

Tom Kenyon writes: “The Creatrix (creation) is the understanding of how thought manifests. It is a type of “inner technology” that allows you to be more masterful in your creations. This knowledge has many streams, from many different spiritual lineages, as well as cultures and civilizations of both this world and intergalactic worlds beyond your own. Planetary Creatrix July 8th 2007 2-4pm Pacific time zone. You are on the brink of an escalation of intergalactic energies coming to you from deep space. As we have indicated in previous communications, this wave activity, related to the expansion of consciousness, is on the rise. ... and from Raphiem: “The underlying issue for Earth humanity in this moment is that it lacks connection to its inner self-its inner power resource. In doing so, it is missing its position and its place in the universe as a whole. Essentially it has been unable to access its power-its divine right to everything outside of itself. It does not understand the universe, and sees all as random chaos without any realisation that there is a divine design and intelligence which is actually them! YES. THEM! Humanity itself.”

“If we...wish to reach the mind and heart of Mankind...then we – seekers, ourselves, for the Truth, – must bring to those who are seeking, the news of a greater work to be accomplished that calls for the whole entire body of their effort.”

“Nothing in the universe can resist the converging ardor of a great enough number of united and organized intelligences.”

“...After mastering winds, waves, tides and gravity, we shall harness the energies of love, and then, for the second time in the history of the world, man will discover fire.”

State of the Vision and the Current Situation

By Alex Kochkin

Introduction:

In this first public “State of the Vision” commentary, there is a mixture of intuitive insights tempered with the insights of experience. With this July issue, Global Awakening News introduces a mixture of content that, for some, will stretch what is considered “safe conversation” in some circles. Humanity never lost its potential to grow and evolve beyond its current state of being, but millennia of separation from higher consciousness has been a serious impediment to our development as spiritual beings who, as whole, lack connection to spiritual consciousness. It is time for this to change, now. Truly enlightened solutions are essential to humanity’s future evolution. This update is unusually long but then what else deserves our attention like this? It has been good to find others who are willing and capable to consider a bigger picture and to “think outside of the box”. Thank you to one and all. The simple act of giving attention to this benefits the whole process of awakening. What can come of these commentaries and essays is a new level of guidance and perspectives that we all can use to help influence events at all levels of existence, not just at the level of the human social-mind realm.

Recently there has been a series of questions raised from various corners to address the current situation as well as questions of leadership, the situation and role of lightworkers, and the meaning of “community” under these new conditions. As “working notes” these topics and others will be an ongoing discussion of this publication.

Of recent weeks with the momentous breaking down of major portions of the dark control structures there have been new energies and changes leading to dramatic spiritual transformation of matter and consciousness.

“Humanity is at the threshold of nothing short of a profound change in the evolution of consciousness: the possibility of creating new societal structures and processes to facilitate a social spiritual awakening beyond anything previously experienced in history.”

- from A New America, An Awakened Future on Our Horizon; 2005 Global Awakening Press

The Momentous Events of May 30-June 1

Earlier in June I asked whether anyone had noticed anything new “in the air” so to speak. In my view, the end days of May and first of June saw dramatic events, ones that have been worked toward for some time now. The main "fortifications" (think of a concrete-like shell) that have surrounded Earth with many energetic levels and that have served to isolate and imprison humanity/Earth for so long, was literally shattered and removed. The more subtle aspects of this prison structure/ control matrix are now in the process of being cleared. It is now possible for the highest levels of spiritual energy to reach humanity and Earth and for humanity to reconnect with the higher consciousness of Creation.

Before this event, direct access to higher levels of consciousness was extremely limited and short-lived. Last year through the early portion of this year, high levels of consciousness from Original Source have been probing and testing, trying to find the least risky way to reach us and effect the desired and needed changes.

Now it is possible for this to occur - and in a big way. The energetic "skies" are for the most part cleared and open. The possibility of global awakening has never been greater. Now the big task is the clearing of the worst that has been literally imbedded into the matter and energetic framework of humanity and Earth. Many dark entities who have been "calling the shots" have been removed. The primary bulwark that has made up the control matrix is gone. More of the "bad guys" and control matrix "backup codes", etc. will continue to be removed. Permanently.

However, this is still a dangerous time for people since there are individuals in positions of material power who have terrible plans in the works to make their power plays and grab all they can of the Earth. Those who are conscious lightworkers need to be aware of these dynamics and the likely events unfolding so as to best keep their wits -- and to be better able to help others through this most challenging time.

Some Background

In recent years the crises precipitated by the intransigence of the dark forces has caused the higher realms of Light to pay greater attention to the details of human social and spiritual dynamics as well as the particulars of the dark control matrix that functions extra-terrestrially and extra-dimensionally as well as terrestrially. At stake was an enormous prize: the maturing of the human species and Earth to its next stage of evolution toward the emergence of a new type of Being – and more. The dark force and their allies had maintained the position that if they cannot control Earth and as much as possible of this sector of creation, then they would employ a scorched earth policy in their retreat.

Due, in no small part, to the powerful intention and focused requests to the highest levels of Light by a few highly focused individuals, over the recent two years greater attention to the details and dynamics of the human-Earth situation has been paid by many beings hailing from portions of Creation that were not been compromised by the dark. Greater aid and support in clearing, healing, and upgrading has been made available and this continues to grow as more people increase their spiritual-energetic capacities and their focused intent.

To the majority of lightworkers, at the present, it is still a matter of "too little too late". So consider this to be an additional request for the new energies to be "amped-up" for greater awareness to become more plain to more people, and sooner than later.

This year marks a major turning point, the energies from this July 2007 on will continue to grow until transformations are in evidence to more people. A confluence of events is building that includes natural and manmade disasters and will contribute to further weakening the hold of those who otherwise would rule the world for themselves –and catalyze more people to evaluate the purpose and meaning of their lives. Against this backdrop, there is an urgent need for a cooperative and coherent new leadership that can help people find their way to transitional ways of being, especially in community where they live/work.

The higher consciousness of Creation may still ask our patience and faith in the process now but the higher realms are now well aware of the toll that has been taken on so many who have “hung there” as long as they can and no longer can bear it –as well as the toll on those who continue to suffer under the terrible rule of a global despotic elite who regard humanity as little more than their slaves. Creation has no reason to inflict further pain on the beloved human facets of Itself.

Corrective Healing of Creation

I like John Crawford’s expression (see following article concerning the “flaw”): “It was an unrecognized event that contributed to the downfall of this whole sector and the introduction of darkness.” This is concise and quite to the point.

I would say that “separation” was a risky gambit that developed into an out of control situation with widespread effects spanning galaxies. I would say it was an exploitable situation for who/whatever would discover it and use it. The various stories of a “fall from grace” are closely linked to this.

During mid-June there was a noticeably strong “see-sawing” of the Light-Dark energies. Within days it felt as though something immense was leaving – a major reality shift that felt like I too was dimensionally shifting and a dramatic leaving-behind-of-the-old. One encouraging sign is that this process is getting closer than ever to the primary bands of human-personality-based collective consciousness. This means more people can “touch it“ to choose to help the process and improve the likely outcomes further --- this requires at a minimum deliberate intent.

If I had to say what the new current is “out there”, it is that of “New Earth” as some are calling it. It encompasses much more than “just” our planet. But this at least expresses one set of high common denominators around which many more lightworkers can focus. The 7-7-7 weekend is an important focal point in terms of giving this impetus a boost – a very important one.

One of the manifestations of the “flaw”/fall is closely bound up with the personality-based “will” - some call it “free-will” but since it is not quite yet liberated/“free”, I will simply refer to it as “will” or “small will”. It has been a theme that has not been addressed very well by spiritual teachers over the ages. Nevertheless, the reminders have always been there, especially over recent millennia. We have simple references to this, such as from the (non-religious) Alcoholics Anonymous’ 12 steps –a healing program that taught that the sooner those who are “lost” can surrender to Higher Power, the sooner will come the answers, healing, and new consciousness. The AA program was a direct response to the need for spiritual healing during a period of great social economic crises in the world.

A Risky Experiment, A Story of Separation

Imagine... We, as personality-based facets of Creation Consciousness, were/are not to function merely as sensory extensions, probe-like, sending back data from a remote location to Home. We were/are not only to function as a way for Creation to experience and be in joy of the wonders of Our Creation as it unfolds and changes Itself. We were/are also to use self-awareness and the risk of separation that it entailed to return to Creation as more than what we came in with. We were/are each to become more than our soul, spirit, and human biology –and at all levels possible. This could lead to the emergence of a new kind of synergy between humanity and Earth –like a new type of organic whole, a cooperative synergy of awakened matter and biology and pure consciousness, yet composed of individually aware beings.

From the beginning, the Creator Consciousness and Local Creation anticipated there would be great risks in allowing/encouraging its micro-holographic aspects of itself (you and me) to become aware of their “self/selves” while in a bubble of (initially partial) separation from Source. With such an extraordinary potential outcome, this was a risk to be made.

So was it “planned for” by Creation? I would say that such a bold experiment was intended, but its full consequences were not anticipated. It was not anticipated for a cancerous matrix to rise up that would run counter to the impulses of unconditional love and joy inherent in Creation. The addition to the vastness of All Creation that could come from a successful outcome of the separation experiment was considered worth the risks. The emergence of a new Creator-Being was part of the dream of the Source of All.

As a precaution, various angels and other beings were to help keep watch and help remind us of connection to Source. Various other agents working in service to Oneness were sent to remind and to teach. We even left our selves markers/signs --as if from our own future -- as warnings and reminders, just in case things got a little mixed up.

With the best of Intentions, the emergence of a powerful control matrix serving to expand “darkness” was not expected nor was the extent of its influence and control something that could be anticipated. This grew to involve wars, major ones, at galactic levels and more.

There was a Thought emanating from the Highest Levels that such problem could be resolved and that never again would there be cause or circumstance for such a profound separation to develop. Never again.

For a while we were surprised and amazed at the various “bumps” and “bruises” we experienced to our multi-dimensional bodies as we explored the new Creation and the possibilities of biological form. We continued deeper into our exploration of separation and of Creation in the context of Oneness and so these posed no threat initially. But as an aggregation of consciousness/energy formed in the over-arching context of separation, a qualitative shift occurred. As consciousness existing in fundamental separation from its Source, it took only one more step to function in opposition to The One, to the aspects of Creation that gave rise to such circumstances.

Those powerful entities that have come to be regarded as the “dark force” found fertile ground among many generations of humans on Earth –and elsewhere. Over thousands of years the dark matrix grew, crisscrossing time, space, and multiple dimensions. The state of separation among our myriad human-focused consciousness became excessively reinforced and as interaction increased with an increasingly “hungry” dark force, this separation eventually became nearly total in the context of humanity-focused consciousness and spread like a disease.

Leading up to our current period, a very powerful consciousness that humans might consider as a very high level being of “the dark” removed itself and voluntarily turned to the Light/The One and in so doing expressed profound sadness and remorse over what had been set in motion and at its inability to control or transform some of the sub-entities that it had been so involved with.

Plainly stated, we are in a serious war zone at many levels. The situation is incredibly maddening to those who highly identified with spirituality and transformation but who are not aware of what has changed.

The stress of material life is taking its toll on nearly everyone. Too many people have tired of endless promises from channeled or otherwise inspired sources that have usually been mixed with disinformation. Many chose to simply deny the existence of a separate dark force, pretend that everything is of the Light, and advocate people to embrace the dark. There are some who would say the dark is naturally/eternally a part of human condition, just as suffering is. For those focused on polarity consciousness and situation in the human social-mind realm, it can look pretty bleak and hopeless. To those who retreat into forms of denial, it is a type of madness. For those who support the dark agendas espoused by those in positions of material power, one can only be compassionate for their delusional state and hope they do not act out on the rest of the population.

So far, there is no globally recognizable coherent center or network of spiritual leadership within the human mind-realm and it certainly doesn't look as though there is a basis for something global to emerge very soon. (Background on this situation and corrective strategies will be one of the focuses of our next issue.) Suffice to say that new spiritually-aligned leadership is needed in all facets of human society, including coordination at a global level. People are so spiritually starved and thirsting for something, anything that holds some promise to their limited perspective, that they unquestioningly jump on new bandwagons. Consequently they will unknowingly eat sand and drink bad water in their desperation.

Today what we see emerging is a globally dispersed collection of individuals – a network of cells – that are more connected to one another by Spirit than connected in material reality in which they reside. They are in community with one another as best as circumstances may permit and are individually and together in community with those of higher realms of consciousness –as well as with the consciousness of Earth.

The “biggest bad guys” are for the most part gone and their former juniors -- embodied and non-embodied -- are now eyeing one another with “knives at the ready” over who can grab dominance, in a winner take all. This makes the human realm world more unstable and dangerous than ever.

However, just as Creation Consciousness catalyzed the emergence of separation and all that ensued, it is important for those who are clear enough about the situation to participate in raising the energy capacity of themselves and others and thus help raise the consciousness and net spiritual and healing energy of everyone.

As more people “wake up” to higher consciousness, the God-wave energy can more rapidly build in its effect with more and more people resonating with it and in so doing bringing new spiritual energy “online”. This is like “free energy” for everyone.

One approach in the social-material realm would be to encourage awareness of “New Earth” and connect the spiritual energy of those ready to show up and be involved with a new “agenda”.

I cannot at this time offer anything more specific about the New Earth-Old Earth relationship. There are at this moment a number of potentialities that could unfold –and the extent to which those who are more aware can mobilize greater spiritual energy, then the more active a role we can play in steering the outcome. To spell these possible scenarios out would be too speculative and counter-productive. Suffice to say it is still a matter of approach and timing –how to bring the New Creation/New Earth “online” while optimizing the awakening of the greatest number of people.

(Free) Will and Choice

In our corner of existence, closely bound with the concept of a “flaw” or the unrecognized/unanticipated “event” in Creation that led to the rise of the darkness, there are two main aspects to “will”: One of personality-centered consciousness, “small-I” for short, and another of higher consciousness, “large-I” for short. The personal will, when used under circumstances of freedom, means that the “small-I” will freely operates without distortion from control matrix and without influence from a distorted set of values and beliefs about reality and oneself that have been implanted or imbedded by the control matrix by virtue of existing under its terrible influence.

Joining “small-I” in constant connection to the higher consciousness of “large-I”, the dynamic could be called “humanity + 1”. Meaning it is more than itself. Imagine awakened humanity.

Choice is naturally related to this process. There are the small choices of personal preference in daily life, sometimes simple and innocent and sometimes made “under the influence of” the prevailing matrix of consciousness. Intent must govern choice. So what do we intend? This is the beginning of clarity and power. As we gain greater understanding, we gain the ability to be more specific and begin the process of responsible creating. Do we exercise our choices and actions from the perspective of the self-centered “small-I” or greater awareness of “large-I”? Clarity is called for once again, otherwise imbalance persists.

For those who are aligning their intention/attention (and their personality-based will) to the higher evolutionary impetus of Creation, surrender to higher power/higher self/highest levels of Creation Consciousness and our “large-I” is the preferred mode as it permits the “small-I” to enjoy a full range of expression and communion through something greater, more encompassing, more “Home” to higher Spiritual Self. The sense and feeling of freedom is extra-ordinary.

In this context, a “drop of water” rejoining the ocean does not lose its identity, it only gains the vastness of communion with the ocean. Imagine many “drops of water” in this state. The ocean becomes ever more so alive and aware at all possible levels. “Humanity + 1” !

Destiny of the Species

What is humanity? It is a special biology - a form of Creation that can evolve into the Infinite. Our biology is intermediate between physical matter-consciousness of planetary-stuff and that of formless energy consciousness and star-stuff. Both emanate from the Mind of God/The One/The All That Is. You could say that each person of humanity contains the fundamental holographic patterns of God/Creator and thus Creation.

So, one question today is that, as Earth and humanity embarks on this grand transformation that lies before us, can what has transpired over millennia on Earth be corrected from the inside out? How to thoroughly resolve the problem so the risky separation experiment that eventually spiraled out of control will never occur again. We are, in my opinion, in an intimate external and internal examination of this problem/question – one that carries with it the most indescribably profound implications for all levels of Creation and of course God/The One/Creator and way beyond this universe and all conceived universes.

Humanity must be freed of the control matrix it has found itself in so it can rapidly graduate from endlessly seeming to be always repeating "grade school" to evolve itself into its intended destiny -- as Co-Creators in training who can join with God/The One/Creator Consciousness in a conscious and awakened partnership.

“The marriage between heaven and earth, between spirit and matter, is giving birth to something new and wonderful. It means new possibilities for human existence, a new vibration for Earth, and new possibilities for all of Creation. Creation is re-creating Itself. The vastness of this destiny is such that it can only be known as it unfolds.”

- excerpted from the vision statement of Fund For Global Awakening, 1997

Humanity is closer than ever before to activating the most extreme consciousness and reality-shifting possibilities. It is now a matter of our intentions, first and foremost. What can we do to encourage our reconnection to higher self and higher consciousness? Humanity cannot continue in the old ways as the old ways do not offer solutions that lead to a new way of being. This shift in consciousness is like learning to breathe in a whole different way and in a whole new type of atmosphere. At the very least, our intentions for ourselves are pivotal for our future.

The Flaw in Creation

By John Crawford

The major flaw in this creation actually happened billions of years ago and was not a flaw. It was an unrecognized event that contributed to the downfall of this whole sector and the introduction of darkness. Looking back from this level of creation there are several flaws that need to be addressed.

The primary flaw influencing the introduction and development of darkness was the introduction of greater density into this sector of creation. A larger flaw in all of creation is the manner of communication between the different levels of creation, the autonomy given to the Greater Creator Gods and their lack of communication between themselves and between the many levels of Creation.

From our vantage point, and indeed, from the vantage point of most of Creation it is difficult, if not impossible, to understand all the factors of the event that took place. We can only look back at the event and make inferences to the causes and all of the effects. We are well aware of the introduction of darkness to the sector and to the resulting battles on a galactic and planetary scale as well as on a personal level.

What we know is that, at some point, probably a billion or more years ago a certain segment of this Creation began to increase in density. It was a slow increase and was not noticed by “Those Who Watch” until after the rise of darkness and the problems that arose as a result of this darkness. It should be noted that one of the major problems associated with this particular increase in density was that the watchers could not easily see within the areas of density and the normal channels of communication upward were disrupted. An unrelated event elsewhere in the greater creation structure also became a problem to this sector because of the opportunities offered by the increased density.

The unrelated problem was a failed experiment in creation by a Greater Creation God (one with the authority to develop and build new creations) Not a great deal is known about how and why the creation was developed because the Creator God long ago absorbed itself back into the Creator of All. What we do know is that the beings that were created did not contain the spark of life from the Creator of All known as the Soul. Not having a soul they had no way to connect to the Creation structure and receive the flow of divine energy from this structure. The only way that they could gain this was to absorb it from other beings that were connected. They soon used up all the available beings that had come into their creation to aid with its development. Because of this they began to look elsewhere for beings that they could feed off of.

All but one of the Creations that they tried to gain entrance to was able to prevent their entry into their structure or was able to overcome this and return to normal. One Creation was not able to do this. Our Creation structure was not able to prevent this in the area called the fallen sector because of the problems caused by the increase in its level of density. The soul less beings, often referred to as demons (red eyes and all), were able to enter into the areas of greater density and to move about freely without detection by the greater watchers and by Creator. This proved to be devastating to the beings inhabiting the sector of greater density. Communication with the greater creation was extremely limited and the full severity of the situation was not adequately communicated outward or upward.

When it was finally noticed that there was a problem within this sector the beings responsible for maintaining stability reacted in a normal fashion and sent in beings to help with the restoration of the sector. Because the depth and severity of the problem was vastly misunderstood the effort was doomed to failure. The beings sent to help were met with all out war and destruction and were easily defeated. By this time the darkness and the demons had gained control of the communications and a vast barrier was created to keep information from getting out and other beings from getting into the sector.

After this failure the other beings of creation began working on a new plan of attack to save the fallen sector. This one was better planned using many more volunteer beings. After several million years the second attack began in earnest. It looked like they were winning, moving deep into the fallen sector. Unfortunately this attack also failed. It did not fail to the extent of the first one, and indeed, the work of healing this sector is still going on. The all out attack failed but many beings came into this sector and stayed to help fight and support all the beings lost in this sector. This is how many of the light workers came to be here. They came to fight and stayed to help the resistance and to give support. This battle has raged on for several million years. After the second attempt by the Light, all communication with the outside creation was cut off by the dark and the Light lost all communication with this sector.

This was both the bad news and the good news. The bad news is that the rest of Creation could not communicate with or help those in the fallen sector. The good news is that this triggered a series of events that alerted the Highest Levels of Creation and brought forth a new response designed for difficult situations. This started about two hundred fifty to three hundred thousand years ago. Part of the response was to bring in beings or splinters of beings from the highest levels and place them into important areas within the fallen sector. Some of the beings were actually inserted at earlier times so that they could contact individuals already in the sector and begin training them for the effort to come. There were some that were specially created and inserted at these earlier times so that they could begin the preparations for the effort. We are currently in and have been in this effort for the last 25 to 50 years.

These beings came into this sector with the primary goal of finding the source(s) of the problem and to help develop and implement solutions. The primary problems found by these being were the darkness and the beings that benefited from the increased density in the sector. Fighting the beings of darkness has been a difficult task that has been completed to the most part. There are still beings out there that are causing problems, but they are not a major problem at this time.

Now we are coming back to the discussion of the flaw in creation. Energetically, the major difference in this sector and the other sectors of creation was the level of density found here. At first it was thought that the darkness was the source of the density. After intensive investigation it was found that darkness was not the source of density but that the density was, not the source, but the major contributing factor to the creation and propagation of darkness. Once this was established the search for the source of the density began in earnest. It was found that there was another being cohabiting the area of the fallen sector. It was unlike any being before encountered.

Until recently it was believed that there was only one thing/being that could create a soul and that was the Creator of All or The All. It was understood that all souls originated from that source and no other and indeed there was no other that existed beyond that. What was found was that there has been a being created in this lesser creation, in this sector specifically that had the potential to create souls. This was unheard of in all of the creations within The All. We now understand that this was a deliberate creation of The All. We do not believe that The All specifically planned for it happen this way but that part of the experimentation of creation was to the end of creating another with the abilities of The All. It is the consensus of those who watch that this was a surprise to The All and because of this the actions that took place because of the increased density caused by the newly created being (baby) were not planned for or even understood at the highest levels.

Earlier this year, baby was removed from this sector and as far as we can tell, from The All as well. This raised the question; is there something beyond The All? Until now it was believed that The All was the absolute end. This is a topic for exploration at a later time.

Now, it is important to understand that the density has been removed, the darkness has been removed and most of the dark beings have been removed and are being processed. What this leaves us with is –Us.

What are what are we going to do with each other? How has this changed the interaction between us and the other light beings in creation? How do they help us now and how do we help ourselves? These are the questions that need answering and finding solutions to. I invite all of you to think on this and what your place is in the new world, new sector, new creation that we are entering into.

More later...

Choice, Freewill, New Patterns, and Discernment with Compassion

Adapted from the book: “A New America,
An Awakened Future on Our Horizon”

Epilogue and A New Start

Humanity is closer than ever before to activating the most extreme consciousness and reality-shifting possibilities. As of this writing, the level of tension between catastrophic change by human or natural origins and the influx of higher consciousness has grown to a truly unprecedented magnitude.

We have before us a very simple proposition: If a sufficient portion of humanity as a whole proves unable to voluntarily make new choices based on a greater level of discernment on behalf of a spiritually-based and life-affirming future, then events will rapidly catalyze this process for us. However, there is no principle that says we must allow ourselves to fall into a catastrophic abyss first before deciding it is not in our best interests as human and spiritual beings.

Our ultimate destiny is that of spiritual beings occupying a unique medium between the solid physical matter of planets and the non-physicality of pure Spirit. This is the purpose of human biology: to provide a distinctive interface between these two aspects of creation. Our destiny is to discover the possibilities available within the magnificence of Creator consciousness.

The human species is a young species by cosmic, as well as human social-psychological measures. We have so much potential that is far beyond that which seems, from our limited perspective, to be an endless array of material and social failures and successes at personal or global levels. The relationship between consciousness – especially that anchored through human form – and our natural and synthetic environment is truly an intimate one. This is gradually being discovered through many of our physical and biological sciences, and is something that people focused on the spiritual sciences have known for a long time. We are indeed a vital part of an entire planetary organism, whether we see this clearly or only vaguely. By the brief measure of a few thousand years and now by an even briefer measure of decades as we face impending planetary climate change – it would seem that we have lost our way. Not so – if we only intend and choose differently – right now.

Humanity has reached a point wherein we have devoted our resources toward destructive conflict among ourselves and with our natural world.

This cannot continue unabated. We can and must make new choices and act upon them. It is within our grasp and capacity to do so. The first step is to wake up to this option. We have so artfully managed to distract ourselves with personal and collective pleasures and power-seeking that we, as a species, seem hopelessly unconscious to an impending dramatic crossroad in our reality.

An enlightened future is not about polarities. It is not about who we do or do not vote for, democracy or plutocracy, or war or peace. It is not about differences between various religious texts and what various groups of people think about them. It is not about capitalism or the corruption of society by the “commodification” of our personal and social relationships. These are all the short-term choices that we seem to have already made by default and for which we now seek remedies.

An enlightened future is about how diversity and contrast can truly function as part of a coherent and unifying whole that is greater than the sum of its parts – and that at the same time benefits each unique part with the perspectives of all parts. Our challenge now is to facilitate ways for the greatest number of people to see this as a choice for themselves and to act accordingly.

What is before us is the emergence of an evolutionary shift in our physical, social, psychological, and spiritual existence. This shift benefits everyone, regardless of their personal circumstances or belief system. All that is needed is to surrender our ordinary personal and societal “ambitions” to welcome the adventure beckoning to us more powerfully every day from our future selves. Thus, we can find resolution to all aspects of ordinary human suffering and our seemingly endless conflict with our natural environment.

Can we open ourselves to the possibility of something wonderful? Can we let go of the old long enough to intend for ourselves an enlightened future?

This is truly the choice before us now. It has always been our choice to make. What matters is now.

“...After mastering winds, waves, tides and gravity, we shall harness the energies of love, and then, for the second time in the history of the world, man will discover fire.”

-Pierre Teilhard de Chardin

Choice...

It implies freedom and provides freedom at the same time. True freedom, though, entails responsibility: the ability to allow another their space to make choices no matter the consequences, but to also provide information and support to make wise decisions. In order to provide that kind of fluid context, discernment with compassion is of vital necessity.

In today’s world, a polarity of black and white (or “my way is the right way”) has insinuated itself into many communities and cultures as a means of survival. An aura of self-righteousness without flexibility permeates many of the conflicts we see challenging humanity, which includes blame and retribution, and entrenchment into mythic dogmas. Instead, what conscious choices can be made to bring about an environment of balance, integrity, respect, and compassion?

Compassion is founded on awareness of our interconnectedness with one another, our natural environment, and the cosmos. It recognizes our interconnectedness as a species, as part of a greater sea of consciousness, as one heart beating as many. It recognizes that this commonality is greater than our perceived differences. This interconnection is felt with our heart, mind, spirit, and body. To act from this awareness is our next step, but this requires the right use of will.

The conundrum is that we are not sufficiently aware of our innate will that naturally favors wisdom over ignorance. It also informs us that ultimately we have no one to blame, not even ourselves. By kindling the recognition of our deeper connections, compassion informs us that we need not blame ourselves to the point of self-destruction. Thus, humanity can reconcile and heal its differences, real or perceived. We can choose wisdom over ignorance, greatness over smallness, if we only will ourselves to that choice.

Today, more people than ever before are seeking and finding ways to connect with and use their innate free-will to choose a positive future before dangerous and traumatic circumstances force new choices upon us. What will it take for various human societies to make collective choices – out of free-will – that serve a positive future instead of a devolving one? This is where a new type of discernment is needed to satisfactorily address the needs of the individual, as well as the whole of humanity and the planet. This new discernment will be used to create new ways of living – new patterns – and not to simply attack whatever is perceived to be wrong, as we so often do.

“Choosing out of higher motivation is really about thought or consciousness determining form, instead of tacitly allowing existing forms to determine our consciousness and thoughts.”

New Patterns

Too many of the movements for social, economic, or environmental justice emphasize attacking undesirable structures and values rather than creating new ones that can serve a positive future. This all points to the need to create new social, economic, and political structures and processes, and to modify what we can (if anything) of our existing ones to serve us in the present for our future as a species. This in turn points to the need for a type of discernment that chooses to look for and encourage the emergence of our new selves. This is a different approach than righteous judgment that seeks blame and retribution.

Humanity has lived and died and learned through physical and psychological pain and suffering to such an extent that our schools cruelly teach young people that this pattern is a natural part of “human nature.” Because our underlying and overarching connection with one another is obscured by much of human culture, blame and retribution help to perpetuate trans-generational warfare.

What if our natural state is to evolve beyond this type of learning by negative experience? A child can quickly learn that it is not desirable to put his or her hand in a hot flame. It only takes one example to grasp this and create a new and supportive pattern. Can humanity not learn that it is not desirable – nor is it necessary – to repeat learning patterns based on conflict and pain? Humanity can acquire a new pattern for learning based on enriching principles of cooperation, joy, awe, and expanding awareness of possibilities that have always been there for the asking.

Collective and individual denial lead to circumstances that will most likely devolve into endless conflict over domination. Instead, we can choose to evolve into cooperation and a positive future fully dedicated to our evolution as individuals and as a species. This latter path can move us toward conscious participation in the vast cosmos of creation – fully awake and fully participating. Such discernment may be the greatest expression and greatest use of our free-will as we discover just how much more we can be.

Discernment with compassion allows us to love ourselves enough to learn to see our various crises as the “birth pains” of something new. Our planet is a vast source for the creation of life. We are on the verge of evolving ourselves into a new species, emerging from a planetary mother. This is not so different from the relationship between a mother and the child she is bearing. The ills of our society are due to the “natural” strain of our own development as a species that is barely awake enough to know what our possibilities are. However, just as a birth process has a term for its delivery, so does humanity as a species.

We are on the verge of something wonderful before us, if only we learn to recognize it and encourage it.

“Humanity is at the threshold of nothing short of a profound change in the evolution of consciousness: the possibility of creating new societal structures and processes to facilitate a social spiritual awakening beyond anything previously experienced in history.”

–A New America, An Awakened Future on Our Horizon, 1995

Free-Will, Choice, and Power

Most of human history has demonstrated behavior based on perceived scarcity, conflict, and fear to an extent verging on addiction. What we have seen is an endless drama in which humanity has set up situations of extreme conflict – between light and dark, haves and have-nots, powerful and powerless – like a game of perpetual brinkmanship with itself and its planetary environment. Survival mechanisms have transformed into domination-accumulation-gratification mechanisms based on human foibles, but made to appear as progress, achievement, and evolutionary advancement of the species. Meanwhile, disastrous results are being reported as to our destructive impact on everything from human interactions to the decimation of cultures and environmental collapse.

Where is the turning point when people reach that place where they finally decide, “enough is enough,” and then act on new imperatives for positive change? (Domestic violence works this way, with two people unable to reconcile themselves internally or with one another. This dynamic feeds international or civil wars that can last for many years, even spanning generations when projected across societies and nations.)

Have we become too psychologically accustomed to operating from an illusion of the separate, individual self? One can see this every day, particularly among discouraged young people who may question the assumptions of our society, but have no sense of how things could be substantially different in a positive way. What we now see in dress, behaviors, and other expressions is the unfocused angst tied to identity confusion, unresolved socio-cultural turmoil, and lack of security and hope for a future that seems worth investing in. Young people are only mirroring back what they are picking up from their families and society as a whole. This culturally reinforced sense of isolation keeps us from living in a more awakened way that further encourages emergence of a higher state of awareness and being for all, regardless of what generation one is a part of.

Our society generally informs us that we have the freedom to choose foods, styles of dress, jobs, schools, to marry or not, to vote or not, etc. Each of these choices includes a consequence or outcome. For some, material possessions, wealth, and the advantages of career advancement with absolutely no consideration of a larger/higher perspective and the impact on others have become addictions.

Consequently, choices at this level do not involve very much of our higher or larger self. If we do not know any better than believing that the only game is what is presented through social-political norms – if we don't know any better than to continue making limited choices, then how can society as a whole change how it functions? Too often the result is a cynical, self-defeating, "can't change the system" attitude where positive "future-present" choices are obscured and dismissed as impractical or impossible. This culturally reinforced sense of isolation keeps us from living in a more awakened way that further encourages emergence of a higher state of awareness and being for all, regardless of what generation we are a part of.

It is time to change "the game" and the very rules describing "the game." It is time for the emerging new paradigm to become more evident for people to see, to compare, and to experience a fundamental difference for themselves. This will encourage more people to choose a positive future rather than a paradigm that continues to devolve into chaos.

Our current norms are not based on the immediate-now and they're not based on future-present. At best they are past-present. Yet throughout history, there have always been forward-looking people whose concerns and intentions are for the highest good of all. No matter what their personal circumstances, there are people operating from a level of timeless freedom that is perhaps difficult for many of us to imagine.

Currently, more and more people identify with forward-looking, positive values and beliefs and the positive belief systems they are embodying are increasingly "out of sync" with established norms. This can lead to a collective breakthrough in which large numbers of people create a new future and a greater level of freedom they can barely imagine at first.

Communicating this potential and facilitating people to act on these higher principles is of paramount importance now.

As this is communicated effectively, people will then need help in exercising their prerogative to choose in accordance with their higher self instead of their separate self. As more people come

A "Higher Power"

"Lack of power, that was our dilemma. We had to find a power by which we could live, and it had to be a Power greater than ourselves. We look upon this world of warring individuals, warring theological systems, and inexplicable calamity, with deep skepticism. In other moments, we found ourselves enchanted by a starlit night, 'Who then made all this?' There was a feeling of awe and wonder, but it was fleeting and soon lost."

Personal and Social Healing

"One of the hallmarks of this non-sectarian organization that pioneered a level of personal and social healing in a modern context, has to do with its emphasis on reconciling the 'personality self' to a greater self of 'higher power.' In doing so, a greater context representing a greater whole is available to anyone for healing and insight." "The terms 'spiritual experience' and 'spiritual awakening'...show that the personality change sufficient to bring about recovery...has manifested itself among us in many forms."

*-excerpts from Alcoholics Anonymous

forward and participate from the context of their larger self-perspective, this process will gather speed and so will its rate of acceleration.

What if people were to re-discover the true power of their free-will? When people feel powerless, they withdraw into a deeper sense of separation and helplessness. Connecting with the heart and higher self provides insight into new solutions and offers a new type of hope based in certitude and intention for a positive future. Knowing and using our innate power to set intentions and make choices leads to advanced democracy and more mature planetary citizenship. (Strategies leading to greater connection, awareness, and action are addressed in subsequent chapters.) Choosing out of higher motivation is really about thought or consciousness determining form, instead of tacitly allowing existing forms to determine consciousness. This is not about changing limited, old paradigm forms and expecting them to serve entirely new purposes. This is more like reaching into the well of one's own spirit, of one's own higher self, to help a new future self emerge into the present. This is what can create a positive future that works for everyone. To do this requires new ways of thinking, as well as of being. It is essential to our well being that we be aware of this.

Language and our use of it plays an important role in social or group consciousness. It can help in discerning the right choices.

“From the beginning, two obvious choices are offered to mankind. One is leading to a bright future if the desires of the Great Spirit are honored. ...the other would eventually lead to the destruction of this world as we know it. This destruction has happened several times before and for similar reasons.”

– from Robert Boissiere Meditations with The Hopi: A Centering Book

Discernment with Compassion

Discernment with compassion is a relatively new vision, one with ancient roots. It asks each of us to allow a more expansive perspective to come into play in order to remember and reestablish our interconnectedness, to acknowledge that what happens to another ramifies each of us in myriad ways. Our world has seen too many examples of the outcome of selfish thinking and actions. We have evolved technologically to the point of completely annihilating every species on Earth with the push of a single button that would launch an irreversible destructive cascade effect. Conversely, our need to step back and recognize the crossroads at which we stand has become just as critical an imperative.

Extreme circumstances, such as natural disasters, war, and near-death experiences, can stimulate new openings for people to connect with their innate freedom to choose greatness over smallness. Greatness of being is our potential and promise. But it is as though we have fallen into a deep sleep of endless distractions and cannot find the clarity or energy or will to awaken long enough to remember this promise of greatness. Therefore it seems fitting that it often takes extreme situations to shake us from this state of seeming helplessness.

Could it be that, in the prolonged process of learning to consciously reach for our potential greatness as spiritual beings, humanity has unconsciously been involved in a game of brinkmanship, going from one set of extreme situations of conflict and dangers to another? Perhaps these extreme situations help to mirror our best and worst as a way to present clear choices to people as we begin to reach for choices that represent a positive future in the present.

Choice is the operative word.

A much greater power exists based on the power of compassion, universal love, and cooperation. It is time for that power to now assert itself more visibly. This is a vast untapped reservoir of universal awareness that will give rise to new structures and processes specifically focused on creating a positive and sustainable future, globally.

The question everyone has before them right now is: “How many more genocides, wars, ecosystem failures and horrific events, before people say, ‘Enough is enough,’ and truly mean it?” This is not unlike a domestic violence situation when one person chooses to walk out and begin creating a new life for him or herself – or when the perpetrator comes to a truly profound realization and ends the violence. This is not unlike someone addicted to drugs, like alcohol, waking up one day to the realization that they have done something so awful that they know they desperately need help to stop their destructive behavior. For humanity as a whole, perhaps it will be a natural disaster of epic proportions that brings everyone out of their collective sleep – or perhaps something of human design.

Discernment with Compassion

An ever-evolving broadness of mind combining the use of free-will and innate intelligence to resolve specifics within the context of an integral whole that emphasizes the interconnectedness of a greater “oneness” we all share as sentient beings in a larger cosmos of creation.

- from A New America, An Awakened Future on Our Horizon 2005

There’s nothing better than a really big context to help people put things into a new perspective for themselves.

Instead of disaster, perhaps something more extraordinary and sublime will happen. Perhaps more and more people will literally wake up to a sense of a different reality and realization of themselves as spiritual beings. Perhaps many will wonder how it was possible we have existed for so long, and with such a deep and potentially devastating level of non-awareness of a greater field of being we are all a part of. The power of our own higher consciousness “stepping in” cannot be dismissed, especially if it is part of a natural “fail safe” mechanism intended to intervene if too many people fail to engage their personality-based free-will to choose a more evolved and compassionate existence for themselves. This is like having a high-level program running in the background of our biologically based self, ready in the event of an imminent system failure.

How far will humanity “go along for the ride” by remaining asleep to our innate ability to choose a better and more evolved way of being? As we do awaken, we must be compassionate toward ourselves for we have been kept asleep and “in the dark” for too long and too often have acted out of blind ignorance. Can we afford not to have the trump card of “global awakening” played?

Next in this series will be ways to take the concept of connection-service-spirituality, (discussed in the June issue) further by examining in more detail ways to bridge what appears on the surface to be a separate diversity.

The Energies of 7-7-7

(July 7, 2007)

The weekend of July 7-8 will indeed be a very powerful opportunity to "land" more of our higher planes of existence and make qualitative shifts. Now it is time to set our intentions - what do we want to see for our individual selves, families, humanity, the Earth, for Creation? Do we want to keep things as they have been?

For 7-7-7, devote at least one hour in meditative mode Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. Ask to connect and align your lower, middle, and higher-self with the highest realms of Light, the All That Is, the Christ Consciousness, and the Earth's consciousness/core essence. Request for the veils to your normal awareness be removed so that you can see/feel/know your awakened self -- your higher self -- the New Earth -- and the Light of the highest levels of consciousness. Ask that it inform and guide you from now on. Extend your highest expression of love and gratitude to the highest realms of Light, to all humanity, and to Earth. Welcome it into to you body, your heart, your mind, your energy field and ask for its transformative power and wisdom. In short, this is a time for our smaller "I" to surrender to a higher power – the larger "I" – and connect with the innate destiny of humanity as a unique bridge between the formless qualities of Spirit and qualities of the physical matter form of Spirit.

Since late last year, and increasingly so this year so far, higher realms of Light have been increasing its flow, increasing its power level, increasing its vibration --all for the purpose of waking more of humanity up. These energies of 7-7-7 are part of this process in that they represent a huge qualitative "up-shifting" from what has been a rapid incrementing of the new energies. Now it is time to "amp it up" so to speak for global awakening.

I recommend everyone read a "Vision" by Ken Carey (1985) - it is very short and speaks with clarity and inspiration to much of what is now happening and can help set the tone and connection for the 7-7-7 energies and beyond. Recently I become acquainted with Raphiem/Blue from Australia, and I have known of Tom Kenyon and his work for over 16 years. These two inspired people are presenting reference points and avenues for people to facilitate direct personal connecting to the new energies that are now coming in. Here are statements from each of them as well as information on the July 7th and 8th meditations.

Planetary Creatrix July 8th 2007 2-4pm Pacific time zone

"The Creatrix (creation) is the understanding of how thought manifests. It is a type of "inner technology" that allows you to be more masterful in your creations. This knowledge has many streams, from many different spiritual lineages, as well as cultures and civilizations of both this world and intergalactic worlds beyond your own. Every human engages the Creatrix, whether conscious or not. Most humans sleep in a kind of slumber, unaware that they are creating their life. They would prefer to remain asleep, so that they can blame others for their misfortune. The more individuals who can do this, the more they in turn will be able to help many many more." - from Tom Kenyon, June 27 Update

Mission-Ignition 7-7-7

by Raphiem/Blue, Mission-Ignition

The underlying issue for Earth humanity in this moment is that it lacks connection to its inner self--its inner power resource. In doing so, it is missing its position and its place in the universe as a whole. Essentially it has been unable to access its power--its divine right to everything outside of itself. It does not understand the universe, and sees all as random chaos without any realisation that there is a divine design and intelligence which is actually them! YES. THEM! Humanity itself.

Humanity would rather give away its power than accept responsibility. We speak on all levels both inner and outer--micro and macro. Earth humanity assumes it is separate from all things, and further, that it is above all things. What humanity fails to realise is that it is assisting in creating this chaos. Simply due to one tiny key expression: Communication. Humanity as a whole is unable to communicate with its inner self--its inner being--and this is reflected by its inability to communicate with all things external to itself, in part due to its belief that it is separate. It does not communicate with its environment, with its nature, its Earth, its children, each another... We do not speak of superficial communication. We speak of inner communication.

Humanity is Earth's central nervous system. Its inability and refusal to communicate is causing destruction to its self at the cellular ("soulular") level as well as other levels. This is reflected with tension, stress, pressure, convulsions, tremors, fevers, quakes, rash... As you can see, biologically it is the same as its Earth. This destruction is reflected externally where humanity is destroying the very hand that feeds it. The side effect of this is cosmic on a grand scale. What humanity does not realise is not only is this situation destroying its inner environment, but also its own solar system, and is contributing to the off-balanced rift on a universal scale.

As you resonate, so to does your universe, but more so your sun and Earth. YOU, HUMANITY ARE THE LIVING PRAYER! You are the Book of Life.

Humanity must understand that everything external to its inner self responds to IT. It is a cause, not effect, of its external universal creation. As a whole, human consciousness is currently steeped in fear and separation. Now is not conducive to enter into the origins of this; it is important only to understand that a belief in separation from Source created fear, and this fear created further separation likened unto your domino effect. The separation in itself was an illusion, a trick, a sleight of hand... Again, to discuss the mechanics of this would further digress so we will leave it for another now in your time, but suffice to say there is no blame directed here. By becoming whole and complete in yourself do you then only know truth.

As humanity evolves externally, it must involve itself internally to maintain harmony and balance. Involution is the order of the day. Evolvement without involvement creates an imbalance which manifests itself as further separation. Abundance and space are dimensions within. However, humanity in separation perceives them to be outside, and in doing so it becomes territorial, greedy, hungry, violent, aggressive...

How to become complete and whole is simply to communicate with all things--no matter how small, no matter what form or shape--and in doing so you become involved, participating. Your resonating vibrations are then fed back into the divine creative loop and complete the circuit to create wholeness rather than separation.

Inner communication is better understood perhaps as communication without fear, and superficial communication is that with fear. Speak your fear. Express your fear. Inner communication is inclusive and whole, and nothing is to be separate or judged by it. Many "new age" schools feign at the thought of breathing the word fear. To exclude fear from expression is further separation.

Expression of fear is not to be feigned, but instead embraced. Fear only becomes destructive when there is attachment and expectation to it. Understand your humanity's fear, for in doing so you will then understand the nature of the beast and what motivates it without fearing it.

Communicating your fears to each others' hearts dissolves them rather than breeding further fear. Humanity is afraid of fear itself. Only by embracing it will you become whole again, and this is done via communication. Heart to heart.

Perception is only half of the picture. Articulation--expression--via open-hearted communication brings you to completion and allows you to grow, expand, learn, explore...this can only be done with an open heart, whereas fear contracts, restricts, stifles.

What has this got to do with 777 energies? Realise that the 777 beneficial transformations may catalyze various fears to rise to the surface of awareness on a global scale, as any unexplored new terrain/territory, even though benign, may stimulate feelings of trepidation and fear. This is okay and not to be judged, but allowed and embraced without attachment or expectation of outcome to the fear. An innocent child not knowing for the better will come to you with fear in its eyes and soul. Do you shun it away and ignore it? Do you yell at the child, telling it to go away and not to be so silly in such thought and feeling? Do you attack the child for having such a fear? No! Not at all. For this will only further separate and alienate the child and breed more of the same. You open your hearts and arms in embracement, listening patiently with your heart and understanding with your mind, and then speaking with compassion and taking measured action to alleviate the child's fear...really it is quite simple.

Understand that those who do not wish to embrace the communication of fear or allow the expression of it to be communicated are in fear themselves. For in doing so they would then need to take responsibility and action to alleviate such fears and it may not be conducive to their comfortably numb position, perhaps one of power and greed. A person not willing to share his food or profit, will not want to hear about the fears of a starving fellow human. This may be a simple example, but nevertheless it is reflective of the human paradigm.

Look outside your window. Look at nature. Look into the eyes of a child. There is a shift occurring. Consciousness is expanding and shifting to a higher frequency, which many term a higher density or dimension. It matters not the technical semantics, but only to know that the shift is occurring. Embracement of each others' divinity will cause you to grow and expand; resistance of each others' divinity will cause you to shrink. Anything that is not in resonance with the coming shift will disintegrate, fall and fade away. Nothing will be spared from this transition. Whether you surf with the wave or against the wave is your divine choice. Surfing the wave will bring you to the shores of the true divine and real human spirit; the other will drown you in the under current. For we have infinite "now-ness" and eternity, and we know you are already home, but it is the journey you must remember to make.

This awakening, shift, transition, transformation...is not limited to Earth or humans, but is for the entire universe--everything within it and those above and beyond it. The universal alignment and shift is occurring. It is happening and will happen to you. The waves of change have arrived and will wash through your hearts, your souls, through every facet of your being...and your Earth, every grain of sand will be kissed and embraced. Nothing will be untouched. When you look back, nothing will be the same.

Many are asking how they can assist. A flower, leaf, or tree upon meditation and prayer with pure intent is all you need do. And so to answer what you can do...When was the last time you actually, really stopped and smelled the fragrance of a flower? When was it last you actually looked deep into the eyes of a child, and actively dreamed of a new world of peace, hope and harmony for them? When was the last time you forgave?

If you have not done any of these in your last week, we suggest you do them daily. For if 6 billion of you did this in one synchronised day in your time--all 6 billion stopped and smelled the fragrance of a flower with true intent from within--your world and humanity could be transformed within the blink of an eye. This we promise you.

Planetary Creatrix:

July 8, 2007

by Tom Kenyon – Excerpts “From the Hathors” - April 15, 2007

”You are on the brink of an escalation of intergalactic energies coming to you from deep space. As we have indicated in previous communications, this wave activity, related to the expansion of consciousness, is on the rise. Specifically, the expansion of consciousness has to do with a greater awareness of the subtleties and complexities of your life as terrestrial beings, but also as intergalactic and interdimensional beings.

One of the effects of these waveforms of energy from deep space is an increase in volatility—emotional volatility. As these waveforms increase in both number and intensity, they will increase irritability, sleep disturbances, irrational thoughts and behaviors. These will most likely be acted out between individuals, but also collectively. These waveforms of energy from deep space are both a negative and a positive. They are negative from the standpoint of your status quo, of your habitual ways of being and operating, for these waveforms will break these structures down at the most minute subatomic and quantum levels. And they will create changes in your physicality and psyches. These challenges to your psyches are a result of your holding on to old ways of perceiving and being. The collective effect of this can be quite devastating to the old ways of living in this world.

The positive [benefits] of these waveforms of energy from deep space is that they create an opportunity, a choice point in each moment as the waves pass through your solar system. The choice points occur as the waveforms strike the very energetic structures of your body, your mind, and your interpersonal relationships. The choice points are a collapsing of your old habitual patterns and an opportunity to rapidly and radically move in new directions.

In very real ways these waveforms of energy from deep space are like messengers that unlock and throw open the doors of your personal prisons. For a moment there is the opportunity for escape, escape from your own self-made prisons, whether they are personal, interpersonal, collective or global. The challenge, when the prison door is thrown open, is to recognize the opportunity for freedom. When the old ways of being collapse—when the charades that you have been living are revealed to you—don’t shrink from the experience. The old ways of hiding will not work, for a new energy is being released into the cosmos.

Your freedom lies in abandoning old ways that do not serve you. Again, this is true at the very subatomic structures of your being, through your “psychologies,” and through your relationships. As the waveforms become stronger—which they will—and as the period between the waves becomes shorter, it will feel like the pressure waves of consciousness are relentless, and in the face of such a pounding, it can feel like insanity or madness. Feelings of desperation will be on the increase.

But we wish you to clearly understand that your desperation is self-created and self-generated, as it is a resistance to the pressure waves of evolution, specifically spiritual evolution. If you seize the opportunities, the choice points, when your prison doors fling open, you will find a new freedom, a new way of living with yourself and with the world.

Those of you who are most sensitive to energy will feel this first. Those who are mired in the material experience of life and in their animal nature will seemingly, at first, be less affected. But as the pressure waves increase, so will their sense of desperation. And nothing feeds desperation quite as clearly as perceived threats to one's survival. In previous communications we gave directions for how to use the Holon of Balance. We strongly suggest you master the ability to create them at will. Your experience of life, in so many ways, is changing at an unprecedented pace. How you move through the narrow gate of chaos is determined not by the outer events of your life, but by how well your internal compass operates, your inner intuitive sense of direction.

In previous communications we have given suggestions for how to create ecstasy or bliss. Our reason for imparting this information is that ecstasy and bliss are vibrational fields that allow you to escape the lower vibrational field perpetuated on your planet. Residing in ecstasy and bliss, or at the very least, joy or happiness, independent of external factors, allows you to slip through the doors of your own prison.

From our perspective, which is from other dimensions beyond your third dimension, your Earth is engaged in an acute struggle between the forces that would imprison you and those that would liberate you. We say this to you with greatest clarity—you are in the midst of a battle for your very souls, your very spiritual essence. For this is the greatest treasure that exists upon your Earth, not the gold or silver or diamonds, but the very ephemeral spiritual spark that each of you possess. Whether you are aware of your spiritual spark or not is immaterial; it is still of immense value. The forces that have imprisoned this planet for thousands of years are threatened by these waves of energy from deep space. They can be expected to do everything in their power to continue their domination of the human spirit. And yet, in the great dance of the cosmos, there are others who wish to free you, for in your freedom a great renaissance of consciousness can take place that will be a great benefit to the entire universe; and so it is that many beings from many realms—who hold human life as sacred—are here to assist you. We are just some of them.

Because you are at the brink of this massive increase of evolutionary pressure, this moment is a critical opportunity to increase the strength of light, spiritual light, upon this Earth. And so it is that we present to you our plan for the immediate future, and if you feel called and aligned with our vision, we invite you to join us. ...”

Additional personal comments from Tom Kenyon:

There are many ways to look at the effects of these messengers from deep space. On one hand, they are evolutionary catalysts that can free up immense personal and collective energy. The Hathors use the metaphor of opening the doors to our personal prisons—prisons being defined as our ways of living in relationship with our selves, with each other and with the Earth. If we are going to survive as a species, we must change how we are living. Period. End of sentence. This is a great potential being unleashed, but it is also extremely disorienting. Perhaps you have experienced some of these side effects for yourself—sleep disturbances, an increase of irrational thoughts, unusual feelings of despair and/or desperation, extreme sudden and unexplainable fatigue, as well as emotional volatility. Some of these symptoms can also be indicative of clinical depression, which might need professional help. If these states of mind and body are not a constant, seem to come and go quickly, then they are probably not related to clinical depression, but may be due to the energetic effects the Hathors are talking about.

Global Awakening- A Vision Statement 1997

Global awakening means individuals becoming aware of and embracing their true nature and destiny as embodied spiritual Beings. This truth goes beyond the limitations of historical beliefs concerning self, time, space, and matter. This realization concerns remembering who and what we are beyond the ordinary considerations of self as well as activating new dimensions of Being never before realized. The vastness of this destiny is such that it can only be known as it creates itself.

Global awakening acknowledges the approaching end of humankind's felt separation from Spirit and Source. Increasing numbers of people throughout the world are experiencing higher levels of consciousness in ways without precedent. This awareness, which goes beyond all the religions and doctrines of history, is of the universal Divinity within all and is part of All that Is. It is a state of full consciousness.

Earth-based experience has served as an intense practice of both separation and longing for Oneness. This is now being resolved and integrated into a new experience of both Unity and Diversity. Unity refers to Oneness of all of creation, diversity refers to the uniqueness contributed by each of us. As more people feel their connection with each other and with all of Creation, we see this awakening unfold.

Like a seed that has found a nourishing environment, a new type of human being is emerging, connected by universal love and spiritual awareness. New potentials are being activated within humankind. As in the birth of any new species, our very cellular material is changing to accommodate new energy patterns or inner Light. The cells of our matter are encoded with unlimited potential.

A marriage between heaven and earth, between spirit and matter, is giving birth to something new and wonderful. It means new possibilities for human existence, a new vibration for Earth, and new possibilities for all of Creation. Creation is re-creating Itself.
