Global Awakening News – Part One

Commentary and Guidance for Enlightened
Change During Rapidly Changing Times

These essays are presented for their value to anyone who cares about the future as humanity prepares to make the greatest shift in consciousness and existence ever. We cover a wide range of topics including social-values research, “future-views”, the world situation, and advanced spiritual perspectives.

“GLOBAL AWAKENING means individuals and communities becoming aware of and embracing their true nature – one of interconnectedness, service, and spirituality, as we express extraordinary dimensions of our larger being. It is remembering who we truly are as we seek ways of developing global processes and structures specifically designed to assist the fullest expression of social and spiritual awakening.”

Our Final Issue

Dear Readers

This is Part One of a two-part final issue of Global Awakening News.

After fifteen years focused on the condition of human social and spiritual consciousness, it is time for me to focus on the transformational process.

Because of its value for those people who are involved in developing conscious community and new leadership, the book, “A New America: An Awakened Future on Our Horizon”, will be updated and posted as a PDF in its entirety at the PFCN website. An announcement will be made when it is available.

Once this issue of Global Awakening News is complete, I will have little more to add to what I have already said. If you have not read the previous issues, please do, they represent the equivalent of a couple of books about topics hardly anyone has written about so directly.

I will send out short updates if there is something important to share, so if you wish to be on an “A-List” for updates, please send an email request to info@pfcn.net.

The hundreds of pages published since 2007 at the PFCN bulletins site and at NES forums covered the major patterns that are important to be aware of in navigating this period. This was done partly to help others not become enticed or otherwise distracted back into the deathly embrace of a dying paradigm and its system of control. While we may not always explain everything in detail or in steps, the material is reasonably coherent and complete for those who choose to read it with careful attention. Guiding principles for awakened new community have been articulated as concisely as possible.

This issue of GA News provides some important updates and covers in greater detail various topics introduced previously

The main PFCN bulletins and article site is being updated and an announcement will be made when it is ready (<http://www.pfcn.net/napsum-bul1.html>). From a while I will continue to post at the New Summit Forums (<http://newearthsummit.org/>). Posting at the NES forums is a good way to reach out to others and we plan to keep it up and running as long as possible.

If there is anything of great urgency or importance, email notices will be sent out as before.

If you have questions or comments, please feel free to email me at info@pfcn.net and I will respond directly.

All my best,

-Alex

Lastly, if you have not read the lengthy Spring 2008 issue, you may want to since this issue continues to develop and update what was previously introduced.

Preface

A wide range of topics are covered in this two-part issue, from the economy and politics to earth changes and spiritual awakening. We are attempting to provide a higher perspective on what is greatly troubling to so many people and how things are likely to get sorted out.

What emerges from this present period will represent the next stage in earthly existence for humans. The coming few years will involve great changes to the basic intentions and fundamental awareness of humans everywhere. The possibility of direct connection to higher-self and God/original Source will become reality for many, establishment religions will lose much of their hold on their followers, officialdom will lose much of its hold on those they formerly controlled on behalf of the ruling elite, and many who have no sense of spirituality will find themselves asking for Divine help. The planet will be undergoing major changes as well, from its core to the outer reaches of atmosphere and energy fields. While some humans will withdraw, others will engage in various civil conflicts, and some will move into a state of higher awareness and a new existence. All responses are of value to the greater process, one way or another. It is a matter of intent and conscious choice as to which category you may find yourself.

We are now in a most unimaginably changing of times and a stunning few years lay ahead. Our planet and solar system is traversing a new region of the milky way. Earth is entering a new zone of the Milky Way, as well as crossing the galactic plane where it will be exposed to new energies for the first time. It is good to be aware and prepared, as one would living in an earthquake or storm-prone area. For those who are more aware, there are the bigger questions of the future of human species while coping with seemingly overwhelming human problems.

Changing planetary dynamics will give rise to major storms of all kinds. Major earthquakes are forecast as well as volcanic activity that will contribute further changes for life on Earth. Atmospheric and tectonic changes will contribute to massive flooding to inland and coastal areas.

As the economic situation deteriorates, more exposures of deceit and corruption will filter out to the public, including more of the truth to the endless wars, false flag events, corruption at the highest levels, and the control over information.

Imagine the trauma and shock to many who will be discovering that their lives and those of their family before them were based on lies and distortions. Consider that most of the memes and values, which humans have identified with, are part of a complex web of deceit designed to control humans to the benefit of a small group focused on global domination. Against this background, some humans will be reacting, some cooperating, some in denial, some withdrawing, and some transcending old limitations.

Those populating Earth from now into the near future will be dealing with problems more dangerous than most humans have any notion of. This would include severe damage to the mental and emotional states of many people, the lack of meaningful knowledge and skills among those heavily urbanized, lack of social skills, damage to cellular biology from a host of barely understood poisons and radiations, deliberate sabotage of water and land as well as the food plants, urban and industrial zones that are mostly toxic sites, and so much more.

However, they will have an unusual source of help coming from a portion of those humans who have moved into a higher state of being.

The question of the future of humanity is complex and will be addressed more in part two and as an update to previous discussion on bifurcations.

Many who are focused on the spiritual evolution of humanity seem to wonder about what portion of humanity “makes it” to a higher vibrational existence and a more awakened state of awareness. This raises many questions. One is like the “elephant in the room”, that being how much of the present human population will be embodied on this version of Earth in five or ten years or so. It is an unspoken presumption among many, that spiritual awakening only concerns those living in human bodies. Such mistaken thinking does not consider spiritual growth at higher vibrational levels, nor does it consider spiritual growth beyond the limits of the embodied personality-self. In our discussions in this two-part issue we will address these questions.

“...those who can move on in their spiritual growth and evolution must do so. If you choose this, there is nothing and no one to wait for... The ripple effect of the forward movement will be of great service as it will free many more who will “take flight” and enter new states of spiritual awareness that can also inform ones day-to-day existence. It is what could be called approaching “escape velocity”. This is the awakening.”

- (excerpted from, “A Spiritual Response”, October 2008 “Interim” Issue of Global Awakening News)

Reported dreams and visions of wars and natural disasters are on the rise. For those people looking at this only intellectually, such inputs tend to be dismissed as a natural stress response. However this is not our perspective. Indeed, while there will be an increase in various stressful personal and collective impulses, the consistency and specificity of practiced “sensitives” is more than can be ignored. There are various ways that intuitive or psychically-derived information can be cross checked and at times compared with methods that exclusively examine only the 3-d human world in the near future.

In addition to the growing number of online videos on 2012 and doomsday scenarios, a number of major motion picture productions are scheduled. Themes related to 2012 include the warning and judging of humanity by powerful aliens, solar storms, massive pole shift, earthquakes, tidal waves destroying human life on earth, devastation by nuclear weapons, and a mysterious planetary body or comet that threatens to destroy life on earth. Regardless of intent or inspiration behind any of these stories, they will stimulate deep personal and collective fears at a time of major changes in society and the planetary environment, along with growing consideration of planetary contact with extra-terrestrials.

We cannot say for sure what will occur between now and 2013, although we have a general idea. However, we do not know whether it will apply to everyone on Earth or not. There are some credible sounding prophecies that have been published recently, all containing elements of truth. But none can claim they are certitudes. We do have some confidence in this: a great many will “know” what it is they need to know through their own higher inner guidance.

A Future Overview Graphic

To help put into perspective the potential for reality to change, we offer this illustration from “TimeWaveZero” software. Please bear in mind that a steep downward slope doesn’t mean good or bad, just rapid change. If you are attached to what has been “normal reality”, then the downward intervals could be very stressful.

The period shaded in the two main yellow vertical bars highlights periods of the extreme and rapid change, although not necessarily apparent to mass awareness. The interval between the first two bars is a period of enormous change from the end of December 2008 through mid-2010 with occasional pauses and plateaus during which to briefly catch ones breath, so to speak. The period from Dec 10 2008 through early Feb 2009 continues this period of major change, most likely with greater effect on mass awareness.

Time Wave Zero plot for present time through the end of 2012:

For more on this topic, please see the NES forums Spirituality and Transformation – Time, 2012, etc. <http://newearthsummit.org/forum/index.php?PHPSESSID=f75c03d56729472e8d9a2b9b3071c742&topic=52.msg3305#msg3305>. There are also comparisons with the Half Past Human material at the link. (Note: anyone can read NES forums without signing up. Just click on any forum and you will be able to read the posts.)

A few additional points: From now until the early part of 2009, the possible use of nuclear bombs or missiles grows. It is impossible to say whether this is connected with manipulations of India and Pakistan, Israel and Iran, an accident, or false flag operation. “Nuclear” weapons have been in use for decades and are still being used, including the dispersal of tons of depleted uranium and the use of small-yield devices. Lastly, we are still anticipating some surprises around the USA elections/presidential transition and continue to look for specific indicators.

Social and political change will be the big thing for most people. For those more aware and focused on the human community, the question will be what principles and far-reaching purpose will guide their actions. In the ensuing economic crisis, many people will be obliged to find new ways to get things done that are considered part of ordinary daily life. In one future viewing, younger rubber workers took over a closed factory in the USA and were discussing how to make tires, and make them better. It was decided by the group to locate the “old timers” who could explain the details about which they lacked knowledge of. In so doing, they also learned how to make more durable and less costly tires that had been suppressed by the company owners.

Looking out to the period of the few years running up to 2012, there is so much change going on. Some of it is looking very drastic from the perspective of humans on earth. People’s responses will be what they will be.

What is most significant is the level of vibrational shifting going on, including unusual phenomena, including awareness beyond the ordinary sensory range. For those people focused only on material life, they will most likely “miss” a few things since it is not likely to be on the 6pm news. At some point more and more people will “get it” and find more to existence through their higher spiritual being.

Changes in Planetary and Space Environment

Mid-December 2008 was a “window” for major earthquakes, at least one of which was expected to occur in the USA. These have been anticipated for nearly two years. There is an additional window for this period extending into mid-January of 2009. Into 2009, ongoing earthquake effects are expected as are a significant rise in volcanic eruptions and dramatic coastal changes and inland flooding. One very reliable person is convinced there will not be any major earthquake in the Washington coastal zone in this window.

(Comment: I and a few people who check in with one another on these matters have mostly had “false positives” as to timing of this in 2007, as well as the expected solar energies for December 2007. We know that in reading something that seems imminent to 3-d, it can remain in the realm of probabilities of an adjacent vibrational or temporal realm. It is my sense that something significant has now shifted and that what was somehow “held back” from 3-d manifestation last year is now free to show up in the physical.)

While there is no exact location and timing identified, there are way too many intuitive and analytical sources picking up seemingly major events for December 2008 into early January 2009. The areas in North America to watch include the Pacific Northwest, Southern California, greater San Francisco Bay/Hayward/San Jose area, Hawaii, and New Madrid-Illinois area. In addition, Taiwan area, Hong Kong, Caribbean, Mediterranean, and Persian Gulf areas.

From 2009 on, we can expect the development of new earth changes involving coastal and nearby lower elevation areas worldwide. Over the past few years in future viewings, I have seen the West Coast of the USA become inundated with ocean and waves. The tides ebb and flow but keep rising. Not related to glacier melt, rather it is more connected to deformations of the seafloor/thin crust areas that are related to changes deep within the earth.

Consider the rippling waves created by a pebble dropped into a pond. If you are at the edge of the water you may not notice much of a disturbance. Now what be noticed from the edge of the pond if a very large boulder dropped into it. One working hypothesis in future viewing is that the larger and more impactful (on humans) an event is in the near future, those more sensitive to these things will sense these events a few years prior. The closer in time to such large events, the greater the detail that comes through. Given the rich and consistent detail provided by many sensitives for such events over recent months, it would seem that many of these events are now “on the agenda”.

As if this were not enough, storm activity is expected to increase globally. For those in the USA who are wondering “what storms”, we would refer to the sudden storm events in the Southern Hemisphere as well as the enormous cyclones/typhoons that have affected people on the other side of the Pacific Rim. It would be reasonable to connect these increased storm activities in 2009 with the influx of new space energies, solar and otherwise. The predicted deep cold winter weather has now arrived, along with much snow in unexpected places.

We need to remember that our planet and solar system is now beginning to traverse a region of the galaxy that is very new to us. It is no coincidence that there have been several dramatic discoveries by space scientists in recent months. (See link: <http://newearthsummit.org/forum/index.php?PHPSESSID=168e874e62480b6e8105d9cced92f9a6&topic=64.msg3777#msg3777>).

Humans are affected by solar and space energies in various ways depending on the nature of the emissions and personal predisposition. Headaches, nausea, extreme forgetfulness, dizziness, time and space disorientation, emotional stress toward upset or anger, are examples that we have noticed over the years in comparing these effects with various people.

New inputs suggest that these energies will have tangible effects on some plants and animals, including human physiology. In the northern latitudes it is possible to hear the hissing and crackling of the northern lights. These new incoming energies may well generate widespread acoustic effects in the atmosphere. During major solar flares, electrical conductors can overload causing massive power and communications outages. If these new emissions carry enough power, then it is possible that there could also be interruptions in telecommunications and more.

Volcanic eruptions are being predicted by a number of different sources to be come more prominent in the period of 2009-2010. Some will be triggered by earthquake activity, some by larger planetary scale forces, including space energies that influence earth’s internal dynamics.

Coastal Effects

For a few years we have been aware of the high likelihood of planetary wide coastal changes, initially due to increases in sea level due to deformations of the submarine crust displacing the oceans. In future viewing these effects it appears as an inexorable inundations of tidal waters.

Tides ebb and flow, but the water levels keep rising. Earthquakes and changes to the relative elevations of portions of land masses result in additional coastal and inland flooding, occasionally with large waves. Additional effects will be connected to changes to the ocean dynamics. This is also being forecast by Halfpasthuman (<http://www.halfpasthuman.com>) in their linguistics forecast as something that will span a period of months, beginning summer of 2009. We have also noted what appears to be a portion of the Great Lakes causing widespread flooding in the Midwest, possibly due to changes in the underlying geology. Recent quakes in Illinois preceded unusual upwelling of groundwater that caused significant flooding. This may have provided a hint of what could come.

Around the turn of the millennium, the U.N. estimated that 3.2 billion people lived in a coastal zone on the average 200 km wide. In Asia there were estimated to be 2 billion (including China with nearly 600 to 800 million and Japan with 100 million). South America's west coast zone has an estimated 40 million in a narrow coastal zone; 30 to 40 million in the Sao Paulo/Rio de Janeiro coastal zone; Caribbean 200 million; Mediterranean urban zone at more than 150 million; and in the USA, 200 million people if the Great Lakes are included; etc.

Imagine the effects of the flooding of these areas. In some ways, advocates of a global warming threat have worked out some of these effects. The resulting diaspora of people moving inland and to higher ground will place impossible strains on a fragile social fabric. The pressures on food growing will be enormous. The potential for many deaths from disease and other causes will be very great.

One response will be to heavily promote the global warming agenda. This in turn will be used to push rapid changes in society – all under the direction and to the benefit of the powers that be. The USA administration will be a willing supporter as will some of the practiced social base, including those who identify with the new age/ new thought, global warming fear campaigns, and a host of others. By the time people begin to catch on that this is all wrong and that perhaps they are being manipulated for nefarious purposes, it will be too late as they will have willingly or reluctantly embraced the final stages of global control schemes by those who have worked toward this for generations.

Pole Shift, Tilt Shift, and Crustal Shift

We are including this topic now since it has come up repeatedly for me in viewing the near term future, and has been the subject of various discussion, including movie themes. So it is something for people to consider today since it raises so many profound questions as to ones' purpose in being and relationship to planetary firmament.

There are many scenarios that various people have worked out, ranging from small (1-degree) to large (90-degree) changes in the relationship between the earth's spin axis and land surface reference points. These scenarios include the possibility of the crust or lithosphere shifting relative to the spin axis and or the earth core. (So Montana might come closer to equatorial?) A rare few have addressed a change in the angle (tilt) of earth's spin axis. The likelihood of a combination of all these effects and major surface elevation changes is quite possible. It would be such a major event that there would be little for the majority of humans to do that would secure their physical existence. Some would head to areas with greater potential of physical survivability, but there would be no way to predict how any locale would fare. Those guided by their higher self would be most likely do well in the aftermath.

When this could occur is impossible to say. However, it is my sense that this could occur between 2012 and 2036. There are differing perceptions of the timelines that may govern bifurcating realities.

In exchanging ideas with a few people who have given the pole shift question serious study, most are of the opinion that when such a change occurs, it would happen fairly quickly, perhaps in a few days. As I see it, there is the possibility of an initial period of small shifts that eventually resolves into a larger pole shift. No one has a corner on these “future facts”. What does seem to be in general agreement is the likelihood of a shift in the earth’s axis in the not too distant future. Factors that may contribute to such a major event would include internal changes to the earth, a major change in ice distribution in the near-arctic and Antarctic zones, and the influence of space objects and radiations.

Perhaps even more reason to get our lives in good order, and find deep inside what is most important to ourselves as spiritual beings and to our existence as humans.

You may wonder, is there more? A few individuals I know (myself included) have had future views of the earth changing its orbit. I can only speculate what the circumstances might be. David Talbot and colleagues developed a very credible analysis that shows that Earth occupied a far different position in the solar system (see “Remembering the End of the World” at http://www.thunderbolts.info/online_videos.htm as well as their other related material). Ken Carey, in his book, “The Third Millennium”, projected a scenario looking out several centuries for earth leaving orbit in his book Third Millennium. In it he described one version of a spiritually advanced humanity.

Economy and Society

We address the economic crisis in a separate article in this issue (see Global Economic Crisis is Not What It Seems) because of its importance as a catalyst for change. For those who are focused on creating a more spiritually evolved existence, one free of the dark forces and the-powers-that-be, being aware of this aspect of human reality can make it easier to detach from hopelessly naïve hopes for “economic recovery” or “world peace” under the “matrix world order”.

The final looting of the global populace is underway by a global plutarchy that has no special national or political affinities. By 2011-2012, the world will be changing in ways that will most likely not favor the re-emergence of what presently comprises the top echelon of the global powers that be. They know this, and will do everything in their power to grab all they can globally in ways that do not prematurely trigger social revolutions. We are in a period of great uncertainty with regard to the planetary environment and the main goal of the-powers-that-be is to quickly consolidate their control over natural and human “assets” in order to better ride out this period of enormous changes to the planetary environment. Their arrogant notion is that they will re-emerge as masters of the world.

Trillions of dollars have gone “missing” in recent years, transferred out of reach of domestic forces and used in the construction of underground and other facilities designed to protect the powers that be and those they bring along to serve them. Meanwhile, we see various branches of those who would be masters of the world in competition with one another, like a mad dash at musical chairs before the music stops. It is not likely that all of them will have “seats at the table” when all is said and done. As one reads of financial losses, bear in mind that if you have billions and you lose 90% of it, you still have hundreds of millions, if you have relatively little and you lose half of it or more, then you really have nothing. Thus it is not a matter of absolute value of wealth, but rather your relative position. Even more importantly, it is the net wealth that you control, if through political or other leverage. So you see it is fairly easy to impoverish entire nations and industries when the time comes to do so. And it has. When governments and businesses are most desperate for more of the money-drug, those who have retained their control will then dictate the most onerous terms.

The economic destruction is but one of a number of artificially created and/or engineered crises, including the “global warming” campaign. These were all developed to engender greater fears of greater threats. All these do is mask the true nature of the global controllers and their agendas and to engineer social memes to get people to passively or actively allow “whatever it takes” on the part of the powers that be to maintain the illusions of “life”. Part of this strategy is to install a sufficiently “popular” figurehead. This was accomplished through a deliberate set-up in the USA elections that would result in only one candidate being overwhelmingly preferred over all others.

Create a social and economic crisis, then create and set up a figurehead to oversee social and economic restructuring in its aftermath. The USA elections were a set-up from the start with absurd choices for the intermediate and finalist “caricature candidates”. This was a new and brilliant twist by the-powers-that-be in engineering the national elections. It cleverly avoids the problems of vote fraud accusations since an obvious enough majority voted for the preferred “packaged candidate”. Regardless of who would be elected, there is nothing anyone can do to prevent economic collapse. The new USA administration is being positioned to continue existing policies relative to economic and military matters and most importantly, the larger global agendas of the-powers-that-be.

In the course of the elections, certain imbedded social divisions were reinforced in such a way as to set-up the possibility for social unrest as economic and other crises overtake people. This imbedded potential is not unlike the differences that are encouraged within any country that is the target of “hostile acquisition” by the global elite. Yes indeed, the USA is an entity that has been so targeted. First comes the massive looting of what material and monetary wealth can be taken. Another term for this would be the intensifying concentration of capital while destroying what is targeted for destruction. Soon enough there will come a new falsehood campaign calling for everyone to “sacrifice for the good of the country”, for the “good of the environment”, etc. And then comes civil unrest that in turns leads many people into allowing “whatever it takes” to restore “order”; and leading others into defending by force what they believe to be their rights. This will be one of several trigger events for some level of martial law to be put into effect in the USA and other countries .

The economic crisis has only begun and it will get much, much worse. Yes, it is an engineered crisis, part of what could be called the final looting of humanity by the global elite who seek to consolidate and focus their control over the world. More importantly, though, it is an “as below” reflection of greater changes to our existence and place in the cosmos.

The domestic and global economic situation will deteriorate more rapidly than most people would care to imagine. The effects will be uneven depending on local conditions and size of territory. The USA will be one of the areas of the world to be affected the worst, and yet there will be pockets here and there that will weather the crisis better than most.

From this December and over the coming few years, the economic decline will continue to worsen. By mid 2009, it will be recognized that there will be no “recovery” as most would equate it to a return to a previously known state of material abundance. The domestic cost of goods in US dollars will rise dramatically for a period. Some will call it the start of hyperinflation, however it is regarded, this will be cause much hardship, affecting the availability of money, food, clothing, and other necessities. This implies more rash acts of aggression that set up false conflicts between various people and the perception of “national interests“

As the old ways breakdown, people will act, hubris will be seen for what it is, and decisions will be made by those in power with terrible consequences.

Distractions and Misdirection

Since the start of the 20th century and more plainly since WW2, an ever-evolving “plan” has been underway that would allow the-powers-that-be to increase their control over a willing humanity. The plan also provided for a gradual “scorched earth” policy as a failsafe in the event the-powers-that-be and the dark forces lost control over earth and humans. The evidence of this is before us: profound damage to food, animals, and ecosystems; to water, air, land, and ethers; and to human cellular, mental and emotional functions. This is more than arrogance of the uncaring and the selfish, it is something that has been and is deliberately facilitated by the-powers-that-be. The “ethers” would be poisoned with electromagnetic radiations, diverse addictions encouraged, and the ability to exercise independent will and choice shut down. Those who could become attracted to something far afield, such as non-religious spirituality, would be controlled by various tendencies that would never threaten the matrix world order, and only support it.

A central concept has been to identify and facilitate, in every way possible, a scenario in which the level of global threat is so great that humans will beg or otherwise allow officialdom to enact drastic measures. Global climate change, political “-isms”, over-population, threats from space by aliens or asteroids, nuclear threats, and others notions were all given consideration. Global warming eventually became the preferred lead threat.

Manufactured “terrorism” and false flag events were also introduced to accelerate events. Part of the process includes the deliberate challenge to and disintegration of “traditional” social norms, to condition people to accept change. There were also modes of social programming developed to attract and then control those most likely to “look outside of the box”. Most people would accept some or most of this social programming. They would do so because of the prevalent mind and meme control that has so brilliantly set-up a way of life and social values based upon layers of lies and falsehoods so deep as to be impenetrable by 99% of people.

Such is the “matrix world order”. It is this same social engineering that creates and utilizes memes such as “traditionalism” and pits it against “modernism”; “socialism” versus “capitalism”; and many other false dichotomies. Thus humans can be readily caught up in a battle of words and wits, and when useful to the-powers-that-be, in military conflicts over these artifices.

... “Ahrimanic powers use all that is derived from old circumstances of heredity in order to set men against each other in conflicting groups. All that comes from old differences of family, race, tribe, peoples, is used by Ahriman to create confusion. “...

- Rudolf Steiner in 1919, see end of article on Economic Crisis in this issue for full reference

Fascism is capitalism with the functional merging of power of the state with the power of private capital. How it expresses itself comes later. But millions of people fought and died in WW2 led into believing that they were fighting the axis of fascism and that the axis of the “allies” were the good guys, little knowing that the top echelon of globalists set the terms for the nations and all were involved in creating this false dichotomy in the first place. Over all this were various higher dimensional forces of the dark and the light.

Let us also be aware that the-powers-that-be are taking a risk by engaging in wholesale looting and betting their kingdom in this process. They are already making some of their erstwhile lower minions very nervous, especially since not all are guaranteed “safe passage” or “get out of jail free passes” under the full protection of TPTB. As a result some secrets will come out and some will find what remains of their “moral compass” and refuse to take orders. We will see this occurring at many levels; production workers seizing plants; county sheriffs refusing to enforce winter evictions; and high level officials breaking ranks and “spilling the beans”.

One big risk of the TPTB is that they are undermining portions of their system of control while creating a new system of control to replace it. They do not have absolute power over people and so they risk losing control during the interim period of “switchover”. They are also very nervous about something they cannot control: planetary wide physical changes and the growth of spiritual consciousness.

In the midst of the coming economic depression and social turmoil, there will be various ways to distract people from shifting to a new mode of being. Planetary changes will be “spun” to boost the profile of the global warming threat campaign. This will be linked to the economic crises. The combination of these will be to persuade people to beg for and to at least tolerate all manner of draconian measures that of course will mainly be to serve the ruling circles in pursuit of global control. Oil prices are low now, but oil prices are also being used as economic weapons. Eventually in 2009 there will be a large increase in the prices of petroleum products. If you really need fuel or heating oil or manufacturing feedstocks, in the USA, there will high prices - made worse by the loss in value of the US dollar.

If this is not enough, there are plans afoot to distract people with space exploration initiatives as well as revelations of alien/ET contact that would favor the-powers-that-be. This latter point will most likely be tied into general fear factors. Many, especially those in new age/new thought/ET/UFO/tendencies, will mistakenly welcome the initial disclosures as if they were actually the truth. But it will only be a more intense misdirection and disinformation campaign than presently exists. Many marginalized people will come forward as “insiders” hoping to cash in on the hunger for truth as well as people’s gullibility. Many will be no better than carnival barkers, as are so many of these people already so positioned. All that needs to be said about this now is “caution”. As more people wake up to their true nature, they will know the truth about our reality. They will not need any external authority.

For the vast majority, conditions will become intolerable and with the concentrations of urban populations who are engaged in heavily engaged useless and worthless occupations and lack simple skills, the economic and other crises will be very traumatic. So much shock coming in a few months that people in general will be overwhelmed and unable to process this in any meaningful way. This is not unlike the problem of “shell-shock” syndrome suffered by combatants in war.

The shadow side of human existence is coming into greater visibility for people. The engineered economic crises are serving multiple functions:

- Exposing the pathology of the “controllers” of the global power elite and in turn how their affliction has propagated to all levels of society.
- Speeding the process of organizing the next state in global government under the-powers-that-be.
- Dissolving much of what formerly served to distract people (consumer spending), openings occur for people to “pop out” of the system and take in a fresh perspective on their existence. Naturally, those in the global controller centers know this.
- Thus they have numerous distractions and fears to keep people from connecting outside their system: global warming, false flag terrorism, wars, movie stars, threat of a police state, extra-terrestrials/UFO’s, the national elections, high-definition television, endless sports games, the elusive “hope” of economic recovery, and more.

The level of corruption is rife at the lower levels as well. This is beyond officialdom, and includes those whose livelihoods depend on promotional selling: Toxic foods, toxic debt, toxic investments, toxic memes, etc., the list is endless. It is curious to reflect on the significance of the USA having the highest incarcerated population per capita of any country in the world, where torture, corruptions, and murder are routine, and that the vice president of the nation is an owner of such private prison operations, as named in recent criminal lawsuits.

The “dark matrix control system” itself will be “pulling the plug” on large numbers of people as its control capacity shifts to the next level of global control. The social, political, and economic crises, soon to be compounded by changes in the planetary environment will trigger many to reject “the system”. At the same time there will be many who, out of habituation, will reactively grasp at what they can, simply to be reconnected to the old system. There is little to be done for those at first, except to gently remind and show them that there are better ways to exist. The question is how will people live? Most importantly, what will be the foundational elements, core guiding principles, and what beliefs will people in a process of change value the most?

It is up to people to be choosing for themselves how they wish to live and evolve. The events we see coming in the next few years will cause many people, regardless of whether they are spiritually oriented or not, to seek “higher counsel”, whatever that means to them. The failure of the capital-based system and the dark forces is imminent and will only worsen and disintegrate. Imagine the effect on this of a confluence of social economic crises and earth changes. Thus over a short time so many millions and millions of people will be faced with major life transforming choices, choices they will be taking very seriously for the first time in their lives.

The foundational principles and behaviors that arise from these challenging dynamics will determine much in the coming few years for a majority of humanity.

Changes in the Human Social Environment

With the deepening of various crises faced by humanity, so many who are concerned over the wellbeing of themselves and others will find a deeper challenge: How to focus on spiritual evolution in the midst of all this.

There are a host of problems and challenges associated with economic dislocation and general social stress that have barely surfaced. As the crises grow, existing social bifurcations we have described previously will become more apparent. Food shortages due to economic conditions and changes in the planetary environment will become a serious matter in many areas. The issue of forced evictions and homelessness is becoming a moral issue and a few county sheriffs in mid-west states have refused to obey orders. The question of those who are economically displaced taking over abandoned houses and commercial buildings has already begun and is likely to escalate. This alone becomes a major challenge to the social meme of the rights of private property and capital. Interest in urban gardening is growing and so are food cooperatives. Prolonged unemployment will encourage many to find new ways to use their time and skills. Social conflicts, between people and more so between upset citizenry and officialdom, will grow and so does the potential for violent conflicts.

New economic activities will emerge, primarily as local cooperative efforts. New importance will be placed on repair, salvage, and recycling and the requisite skills. Food growing and distribution will take on new significance in rural and urban areas. Economical health care/maintenance will come into conflict with establishment institutions. In some locales there are home based or community-wide alternative communities emerging. (This is different from land-based intentional communities and have much wider applicability.) In effect these are transition communities forming within existing geographic communities.

For those seemingly trapped in an urbanized mode of existence, conditioned around consumerism and mind-numbing distractions, it may seem a practical impossibility to disengage from life in the “matrix world”. Yet it is possible to continue going through some motions of ones income related activities, yet consciously be in the process of disengagement and preparation for a new life. This would add new significance to the expression, “being on the earth, but not of it”.

Exposures of the malevolence and callousness of those in powerful positions will further change people’s perceptions. Deeply traumatic will be the growing realization that the basic premises of their life have been lies, as has been their parents’ and those before, etc. Then comes a realization that what they have been projecting for their children has been based on lies they were conditioned to accept as truths. This is a level of social shock that can help propel people out of the old ways and on the road to discovering and creating new ways of being. It can also trigger psychoses on a mass scale.

The economic and political crises have been planned and engineered as a last rush to concentrate wealth and power. This is all part of a larger thrust by the powers that be as they engage in a final push for global control before “the music stops”. Some of “missing trillions” have been used for secret facilities designed to protect the interests of the elite. No amount of “show trials” or social turmoil can restore social and personal illusions, nor should it.

It is quite understandable that many would choose to “fight the system” while others will try to create new modes of society. It is also very understandable that many would withdraw into a quiet existence, some out of fear or worry, others out of a need to pay greater attention to their inner being. For those who are called by their inner or higher self to consider there is more to their individuated and greater existence than there is in this present human form, these can be very challenging times given the strong attraction physicality and social life can have.

The entirety of the old ways are based upon falsehoods upon falsehoods, layered so deeply it is nearly impossible to ever learn the true details of events.

For those who can take a deep breath and consider the larger picture, what matters is what one intends and does from now on.

To what extent will people recognize the falsehoods they have been living under and create new ways of being with one another and this planet? That is a big question and an immense challenge for enough of humanity to continue on and learn to evolve and grow as embodied spiritual beings or not. For those who do not need to comprehend all this, it is directly a matter of detaching oneself from reaction and fear and a matter of connecting to ones higher self and Source.

Blame and Shame?

Not surprisingly, there will be a dramatic rise in reaction against those who have become known as “the-powers-that-be” and their representatives. As elements of society look for the source of the problems and look for ways to allocate blame and responsibility, there will be much misdirection, both deliberate and inadvertent. Of course so many of those who have much wealth and influence are trapped in the confines of the “matrix world order” as well.

If all you ever knew was a lie, then how could you be held responsible for acting wrongly? Yet at the same time, each is responsible to be able to recognize and acknowledge what is “unright”.

As the crises (plural) deepen, there will also be a dramatic rise in outward and self-blame on the part of humans for the ills and ruin of society and the planetary environment. Already common are expressions by commentators condemning the “sheeple” for “allowing” the present situation. Others decry the lack of voting participation in the USA overall. And of course there is the “blame” placed on “Congress” and the low quality of elected and appointed people who dominate government. Where does this end?

Such blame and shaming can be extended to the oppression of Blacks by Blacks who were complicit with white European slavers, the heritage of white Europeans supporting and thriving from the systematic destruction of the indigenous people of North America, and on and on. This would include nearly all racial, ethnic, religious, or nationalistic facets of humanity that has found itself a focal point for conflict and suffering.

If all you ever knew was a lie, then how could you be held responsible for acting wrongly? Yet at the same time, each is responsible to be able to recognize and acknowledge what is “unright”. “Responsibility” in this context has a very different vibrational quality than that of “judgment”, that is commonly associated with the concept of responsibility.

An informed compassionate perspective would see that humans, in so many ways for such a long time, knew no better and were heavily manipulated from all corners of life and beyond. Some would argue against this saying this is tantamount to saying humans are not responsible for any of their problems, and thus do not need to learn right from wrong. Not so. Those who acted thus and so are indeed responsible, but in a limited manner. If all people knew was to drink from a poisoned well, get sick and die, and that they were taught that this is normal, how things have always been, then who could they know better? They would be a product of distortions not of their origination.

The ultimate in “blame and shame” comes from the dark forces and their human agents in the religions and the new age tendencies. This lie misinforms that humans created the dark forces and all that implies, including all the problems and ills of the human society over the ages. This lie hides another lie, that is the claim that there are no dark forces, they are after all “servants” of the true light. This is further extended by the dark positioning itself as representing the true Light, imputing they are to be worshipped or acknowledged as true creator gods. These themes are all founded on separation of Earth and humans and this corner of creation from true Light. The dark need humans so they can feed off the true Light that humans carry within them. This is something that the dark forces do not have direct access to. Hence their drive for control over whatever they can of true Creation.

Recently certain popular spiritual figures have stated that if people do not put their full energy and support behind Obama, then things will get much worse and people will only have themselves to blame. Some of these people even paint rosy pictures of some miraculous change over the world of human society including financial. These are all deliberate “set-ups so that when things continue to fail and result in hardships, then a significant breakdown occurs in the will of people. This in turn leads to a more thorough breakdown of every facet of social cohesion, from personal relationships to the illusion of national identities.

While individual humans are responsible at certain levels for their intentions and actions, collectively this is not the case for humanity, given the terrible nature of the control distortions placed upon so many generations from forces outside of ordinary social reality. The vast majority of humans contain the spark of Light from original Creator: it is this that the dark forces most seek to capture and control. It has been the process of control and parasitism that is primarily responsible for the terrible condition of humanity today.

For those who are looking beyond the veil of social miasms, the question is one of profound intent, for their existence and that of humanity.

Real “Change”

Detaching from all the issues and problems of humanity’s present existence may seem nearly impossible at times, but it is supremely necessary to do so.

While this presents a major quandary for many, at some point, ones’ awareness can encompass these problems and begin to move beyond a state of limitation. The old ways cannot possibly serve to propel one to a new existence, except by repulsion. Sooner or later there is that which compels through a beckoning to something other, an awakening, a reconnection to one’s higher nature as a spiritual being, and that is not limited by physicality.

There will be those who persevere with new cooperative modes of social and economic life. Major questions they will face include direct and cooperative actions to address basic problems of food, water, shelter, and other necessities. Those who have access to a plot of land and good soil will find that growing food is not only a practical part of daily life, but an enjoyable one. No doubt new types of food cooperatives will emerge. Some cooperatives will find ways to take over certain manufacturing and transportation. There is much potential for communities of people to creating transitional social economies.

To some this will be the start of a new existence. At first it will be challenging, but there will be those who persevere in forming new types of community. Here the guiding principles we articulated can help in the transition: trust, caring, service in a large context of connection to our true nature as spiritual beings. Whatever the choices and actions people engage in, there is so much more to existence than re-organizing the means of production and distribution for greater social and environmental benefit. It is the larger context of our higher spiritual nature that is beckoning for our reconnection to our greater self.

Humanity is a collection of “individual affinities” that get shaped, molded, and controlled by a deliberate and self-maintaining process of “meme-engineering”. The people of the USA, as in most of the “developed” world, are part of a social fabric based on myths and lies, comprising a society based upon consumption, and overseen by a hierarchy of individuals whose first allegiance is to “Mammon” and themselves. It is amazing that ordinary people will act out of simple goodness and caring. Yet they do and all is not lost.

For all those of officialdom who refuse the unrightness of eviction orders against people with nowhere to go, there are also those who advocate harsh “social Darwinism” and the right of capital. While there are humans torturing and depriving others of their human existence, the mass of humanity cannot and will not move ahead into a higher vibrational state.

Those humans who do vibrate at a higher level and who are called to spiritual evolution cannot hold themselves back through some misguided “survivor guilt” or misguided “compassion”. The solution for humanity will be through those who deliberately move into a higher order of awareness and existence. They in turn become bridges for many more, and on and on.

Humanity’s salvation is through recognition and acknowledgement of all that has been experienced since the very beginning. What is of value and serves spiritual evolution remains, what is not of value and does not serve, must be let go of. This applies at the level of each human as well as the collective of humanity.

Transformation

In the midst of chaos and systemic breakdown, something new is occurring that at first is only noticed by those who are most attentive. Soon enough it will become more visible. Gradually this will spread to more who are open and ready for a major change in their existence.

Around the end of October, we began noticing an aqueduct of corrective energies emanating from the highest levels of Source and -- after much difficulty getting through -- flowing within levels of the human higher self. This “cosmic correction current” that has descended to be near us is being processed through the higher self, clearing and healing the higher self, and downloading into the human personality self while it proceeds with clearing, healing, and “anti-dark inoculations”. It carries new “operating system downloads”, complete with new light codes – and the capacity of Divine Grace and Absolution.

In the awakening, there comes the capacity to acknowledge and recognize all that has been and that is of the human existence on Earth. As the transformational process unfolds, a quality of Absolution occurs, granted by our awakened selves in re-connection with original Source. I would call it “God-Self-Absolution”. It is interesting to reflect on meanings of the expressions:

“The Absolute”, “Absolve”, and “Absolution”. This process has many similarities to the more profound levels of near-death experiences that have been reported by those who “return”. One of the most dramatic is how very changed are one’s perceptions of and interactions with “reality”. Another dramatic quality is the level of discerning compassion.

The qualities of this “God-Self-Absolution” are very important in helping a larger measure of humanity “make it “ through the process and not become mired in shame and blame that comes with only a partial and limited comprehension. This is discussed in this issue under the section in part two on transformation and awakening.

Our spiritual nature and true existence remains an abstract mystery to so many people. It is thus that they cannot help themselves as to their responses to the situations and circumstances of human life. It is true that at the very least, people can take responsibility whether their intentions and actions are for highest good or not. However, there is so much ingrained programming and many forms of real-time programming, that it is rare to find humans considering their world from an awakened or spiritually aware perspective.

The level of true spiritual response to the current process of breakdown and change will determine much of the future of humanity and this laboratory for Creation that we call Earth. Until enough of humanity becomes reconnected with their true nature and derive their guidance from their spiritual selves, there can be no lasting solutions to the profound problems of humanity. Meanwhile, humans will need to find ways to “get a grip” on themselves and keep their wits about them. Focusing on cooperative community based on trust, caring, service is one place to start.

Global awakening to our true spiritual nature is paramount, and yet it cannot be projected as an imminent and automatic miracle for six and half billion humans who, for the most part, are unable to discern truth from influence of the falsehoods they are living under. The process will most likely unfold over a period of years: for some a few years, for others possibly a decade or so.

It is my sense that those who can move on in their spiritual growth and evolution must do so. If you choose this, there is nothing and no one to wait for, and one cannot look back. To look back is to become frozen in place. The ripple effect of the forward movement will be of great service as it will free many more who will “take flight” and enter new states of spiritual awareness that can also inform ones day-to-day existence. The multiplying effects of the awakening of some, then more, will have a powerful influence upon yet even more. It is what could be called approaching “escape velocity” to new realms of existence. This is awakening ...and more.

The “Rolling White Light”

By John Crawford

Note: The “Rolling White Light” and the “Cosmic Correction Currents” are aspects of a vast transformational process that is at work. For background to this, please see the article in the Spring 2008 edition “As Above – As Below, Transformation and Ascension”. One of our valued colleagues, John Crawford, has the following observations:

“For the past year I have been watching an event that I have called “The Rolling White Light”. I called it this because of how I perceived its movement as it came down from The Creator to this level. It had three stages in it as it hit each of the three levels above us. First it came as a bright white light to a level, then after a short period of time it moved into a rolling white light. Its motion reminded me of how waves rolled when coming into a beach. The third part was an intense white light with healing properties within it.

I perceived it coming into this level, starting in late summer or early fall, as a white light. This white light began causing instabilities in all parts of this creation. We are seeing it in the turmoil that has come to this planet but it is much deeper than that. It is affecting everything all the way down to the atoms and beyond. It may be that some scientists are seeing this disturbance but not understanding its origin or effect.

The effect of the rolling white light is just now reaching us at the physical level. It has moved into the levels just above us and caused much disturbance in the beings and essences there. This has had the effect of having what we have called the “dark forces” to step up their activities to cause as much destruction and as many problems as it can before they are wiped out. Getting “wiped out” is only in their perception, and they are being given the choice of accepting what they have done and what they will have to do to return to the light -- or be reabsorbed into the great unknown. We will also have this choice given to us. Some of us will choose to return to our source and begin re-embodying again. Others of us will choose to make the changes necessary to continue with this embodiment. Whatever the choice we make it will be an interesting time for us.

This choosing is also happening in the highest reaches of ensouled beings. Many of our guides and creators will make this choice. Many will be and are being replaced with beings without the stain of darkness within their being. Others are making the necessary changes so that they can continue with their evolution and with the work that they came here to do.

When looking out on the white light it is beginning its “rolling phase” here but what is interesting is what is coming after the third stage of the white light. It appears that the descending white light was only preparation for what was to come. For so long a time, the pure energy of Creator was not at this level. There was energy but it had been tainted by the dark, or more specifically, by one or more beings that sought to take the place of Creator and thus control a part of creation.

Everything that had been created below these beings had the touch of darkness or the taking away a part of the light of Creator from each of the beings below their existence. Within such “fallen” realms, many beings who contain the “spark of light” from Source became trapped. Lacking direct access to the light of Source, the dark tried to control or appropriate this light for its own purposes. As above, as below, we see this dynamic playing out today within the human sphere of existence.

Now these beings are being replaced and the damage done to this part of creation is being repaired. The descending white light was and is a part of this repair. The final stage is when Creator at long last descends into this level and beyond with its pure light replacing the false light that has been with us for so long. This is happening and is being seen and felt in the highest levels of this creation structure and will move into this local sector or area sometime in this next year. I am seeing about the middle of the year but do not know this as a fact. My “seeing” can be way off as to the human time frame but I do see this as happening and it will be so.

What this means to us here is hard to say. We have not had this level of Creator Light available to us for so many millions of years that it cannot be seen as to what the effect will be on us. Many will likely wish to leave embodiment and start fresh in another place or time. Others will willingly accept the changes and move into the greater self’s that will be the new paradigm or way of being.”

The Global Economic Crisis Is Not What It Seems

By Alex Kochkin

It is possible for people to develop new modes of social and economic interaction that lead to a more conscious and evolved existence. It will take a severe breakdown and loosening of the hold that the “matrix new world order” has over peoples minds and physical existence. It will also require people to intend for themselves something very different than the false illusions that presently define their human existence.

Background

First, a few basic economic concepts: “Value” represents labor and materials as well as factors for perceived use or need. “Money” is merely an exchange medium of convenience and is a rough indicator of the net “energy” of all value. Capitalists overlay these simple concepts with its innate impulse to expropriate wealth from rents as well as the production process. Banking creates “virtual money” from nothing at all. Speculation on future events has burgeoned, with speculation on the outcome of speculations, etc. Today finance controllers employ advanced math to find solutions to stated goals. From this comes a host of complex tricks that even the people who gained through these means cannot explain how they work. Seemingly simple notions of risk and liability are made into desirable “assets” and what ordinarily might be considered positive qualities, while assets are treated as negatives. Built-in to this system of plunder are countless billions of dollars of “bonus incentives” for top people employed in these officially-sanctioned criminal enterprises.

Some people who call themselves “economists” describe patterns of finance and proclaim various “economic “laws”. The fact is that these are not laws, as in cosmic principles, but simply and merely descriptors of some (sick and malevolent) human behavior over a very short period of human history. Increasingly, economic “laws” are shown to be irrelevant and meaningless as the “matrix world order” goes through a rapid and massive plunder of the world by the-powers-that-be and their top servants. Entire sections of universities are devoted to promoting twisted economic thinking and some top economists are highly paid to find ways to defraud and plunder other countries.

At the very top are those who are truly in charge. They do not concern themselves with details, only strategy, goal setting and negotiating. The details they leave up their highly paid and publicly recognizable minions. One of the details has to do with the drive to accumulate and concentrate wealth into the hands of smaller numbers of people near the top. Yet is curious that the very top echelon are beyond considerations of crude wealth, their goals for global control transcend more human generations than could be imagined.

Within the greater parameters of the agendas of the true controllers of global affairs, there is room for mistakes, hubris, arrogance, and plain stupidity on the part of public officialdom. Part of their job is to “take the fall” at times and those who play their part, usually are well taken care of until they are needed again. Some majority of the public faces whose job it is to make and execute policies really believe in the false premises and values and goals that they operate under. They are still responsible for their roles, even though a spiritual perspective would see that they are so blind that they really do not know what they are doing.

The USA is an entity that is beyond the total or averaging of its population. It has an energetic identity as a nation, a major one at that.

A hidden truth of the USA is that, despite its early potential and subsequent “democratic” concepts, its inception was based upon genocide, slavery, and the destruction of the natural environment. The USA became an important financial, industrial, and military power largely in service to the highest levels of the global powers that be, especially those largely headquartered under the English flag. In the 18th century, the USA had the potential to embrace women’s rights, reject slavery, and make amends for the decimation of the indigenous population by the early colonists. The USA had the potential to embrace values and inspirations of a non-religious spirituality. Instead religion was encouraged to become the gatekeeper for spirituality and prevent spiritual principles from guiding the growth of the nation and its population. By the 19th century, the destiny of the USA was cast that led to over two hundred years of arrogant pillage of the planet and humanity by the-powers-that-be. Most nations would never realize true national sovereignty. Like the “-ism’s” fostered as tools of subjugation on behalf of the global controllers, “nations” have always been convenient “notions” serving to control their respective populations on behalf of the ruling global elite.

The-powers-that-be never do not have allegiance to any nation, race, “-ism”, or other such “notions”. The meme-engineering by TPTB is such that even those people who may notice certain patterns will wind up arguing over the “-ism’s” and thus successfully mask the true nature of the controllers. Wars are promoted and fought under the banners of various “-ism’s”, with the most passionate advocates for each side never noticing that both are based upon falsehoods designed to manipulate them into the very passionate behaviors they find themselves acting out. Thus people will wind around one another in cooperation or conflict, never guessing that regardless of the outcome of the efforts, they are all still captives of a greater system of control.

A core problem is that humanity will do what humanity will do (and has been programmed to do by the dark at many levels). At its current level of awareness, humans are not accessing higher spiritual energies. Until enough of the old ways and attachments are let go of, this cannot happen. Thus there is some responsibility on the part of humanity and that humans must acknowledge what is wrong and learn why.

The invitation to immigrants manipulated naïve and honest desires for a new life and other opportunity. That very drive for “opportunities” became an easy meme to manipulate. It resulted in the expansion of the labor force at a rate far greater than natural population growth. Today, the USA as a global influence, is controlled by the same interests who engineered the major wars of the 20th century, including the financing and establishment of the fascism and totalitarianism.

The truth is that it has never been about which nation won which wars and which ones lost. The pursuit of those wars was fundamentally driven by the same interests that are driving the final division of the world under a singular network of interests that are not motivated by the nonsense of monetary gain. The USA now serves the global controllers as a vast supply center for financial, technological, industrial, and of course human cannon fodder for perpetual wars of conquest.

In the USA, the bulk of the population has been conditioned to be an eager enough participant in this process. Even those who position themselves as critics ultimately are found to be subtly supporting what they appear to be criticizing.

Part of the conditioning was to make sure that enough of the population had sufficient financial ability to maintain a gluttonous level of consumerism and help maintain the illusion of a growing economic bubble. Like everything under the powers-that-be, people are taught more is better, growth is necessary and desirable –all sounding like the voice of cancer.

Given the level of sophistication in controlling peoples thoughts, ideas, and motivations, it is no wonder that the USA public has seemingly gone along with this process. Mindless entertainments, endless distractions, plus the curious willingness for couples to work full-time and at longer hours while neglecting their personal growth and that of children, seems like a successful behavior modification program at mass scale. This is part of the process of getting those most imprisoned by the matrix world order to be willing participants in their own enslavement.

From the perspective of TPTB, it is time for them to consolidate their system and move to a final stage of global domination, before reality is turned inside out and they find themselves outed.

We are now entering a managed crisis mode in which the greatest risk to TPTB is too many of the former slave-addicts becoming unhooked from the system that made them slave-addicts to begin with and spontaneously cause trouble for their former masters.

Anticipated and Engineered

First of all, this is an engineered and “fast-track“ managed “crisis”. In this regard it is very similar to nearly all preceding economic “crashes” of recent decades, the Great Depression, and the economic crashes before that. This present “crisis” is not due to some careless policies or the fault of certain presidential administrations. The timing and “game plan” is considered and executed at the highest levels of the global powers that be and implemented by designated public figures.

Second, in anticipation of some major planetary changes, this represents the final looting of humanity in the shortest time possible.

Third, the vast majority of economists have been trained to analyze “economic laws” and they have sophisticated math to demonstrate. By calling these “laws”, these notions get associated with other concepts like “laws of physics”.

All “laws” legal, scientific, economic, etc. are created by humans and are crude attempts to explain various external phenomena. Economic “laws” are fairly new and mostly relate to the rise of capitalism. They are only fleeting glimpses of general psychological behavior on the part of various dynamic in the capitalist system.

Time is running out for this mad rush to concentrate and consolidate wealth and power globally. The general “window of opportunity” to continue the present rate of looting and diverting of vast amounts of monetary and material (real) wealth will be closing nearing summer of 2009. That is not to say that ongoing expropriation of wealth ceases. To contrary, it continues, but at an altered level. We are in the period of a fast re-shuffling, like global musical chairs. Everyone in the top layers of control are now obliged to move as fast as they can before the music stops and some find they may no longer have a “seat at the table”.

When this system terminates, as it is now, these “laws” lose their applicability. So as various commentators refer to the economic crisis, most are referring to a crisis in the dynamic mechanisms of the capitalist system. As a secondary consideration, the term “crisis” is both a descriptor and fear-meme that hints at what is being experienced by the masses of humans who have been tethered to a parasitic system for generations. The crisis can be directly compared to the crisis of a drug addict who was tricked into getting intravenous feeding. In fact many economic commentaries imply acknowledgment of this fact by references to “injection of capital”, “fixes”, etc.

Be certain of one thing, while there are looks of consternation and many late night meetings of officialdom, it is not that they are concerned over a crisis. They are concerned over managing the risks to the process of looting they are charged with guiding through various bumps and turns. They are concerned to minimize social unrest and repercussions that could threaten their personal safety. They are concerned over even greater risks, some man-made, some extra-planetary. But there is now “crisis” as if everything is out of control. It is only a fast moving situation in which deals and alliances are made to benefit the top echelon agendas and minimize social uprisings. This is an engineered crisis, one that has been on the “agenda” for a while.

The global economic crisis and depression and ensuing social change that is forming will cause many to mentally, emotionally, and materially detach from the old paradigm in every way possible. Yes it is a crisis to those who are adversely affected by this. Given the popularity of the Matrix movies, I will borrow from their imagery: The cords that tie you to the “matrix world order” have never been beneficial, even in the illusions and lies of the post WW2 era or any other period of artificial “nostalgia”. These cords connect to your energy fields as well as your overall ordinary awareness. Like a combination intravenous and electrical cable, various qualities of awareness can be stimulated or suppressed. The good news is that the “fast grab looting” process underway is causing the matrix system to disconnect a lot of people. It will take a while for them to realize what is occurring, meanwhile the vast majority are ill-prepared to cope with this sudden “unplugging”. Hopefully the cosmic correction energies will help clear some of the old enough to trigger some into awakening, rather than seeking reconnection with the toxic familiarity of the matrix order.

For thousands of years humanity has been enslaved and controlled to serve the interests of various overlords. At some point, the region of creation that included Earth came under the control and domination of the “dark forces” and humanity found itself also under the control of an earthly counterpart to the dark. The non-earthly interests were keen on understanding, controlling, and taking what they could of the Divine energy of Creation that is within humans. The earthly interests were more interested in using people in a process of primitive accumulation of real wealth. The population of Earth grew and the means of transforming raw materials and the efficient expropriation of wealth became more sophisticated.

Human civilization is based on the creation of wealth by masses of people and the systematic expropriation and subsequent concentration of wealth into fewer hands. This began with a sparse human population and primitive accumulation of agricultural and other surplus and the (usually forced) allocation of a portion to local ruling lords. As populations grew, so did the ability to organize labor and distribution and to funnel wealth in increasing amounts into a small number of families. They would share some of this wealth and limited authority with a growing layer of executives and administrators. As populations grew and the division of labor became more discreet and automated, a techno-managerial layer was encouraged. As with any hierarchy of privilege, those at the top most identified with those in the higher strata above them. Thus TPTB could protect themselves further while maintaining the same or greater measure of the control of the pyramid of layers below them.

The period we are now in results in those at the top deciding how much of the lower layers they can afford to cast off without taking on excessive social risks. We will soon find more disgruntled whistleblowers from various government and private organizations showing up with insider “secrets” to tell.

Fast-forwarding to the late 19th and early 20th century USA, family farms were the primary source of food for a growing population. Family farms began as a simple accumulation of wealth in the form of buildings, machines, livestock, and crop surpluses. With the enormity of bank failures, it was possible for larger banking entities to acquire property rights held by smaller ones. This facilitated the conversion to massive industrialized farming and the subdivision of agricultural lands into suburban developments and new towns and cities.

Through motivation of greed, self-aggrandizement, mergers and acquisitions, automation, and engineered financial crises, wealth became highly concentrated under the control of TPTB and highly leveraged to accelerate their agendas. In making such a fast grab to consolidate global positions, it is inevitable that many of their lower minions will be “cut-loose” and that the masses of people will experience the greatest difficulties. As humans begin to create new processes and structures for a new society, the greatest danger and challenge will be to identify and delete the toxic memes and habits that are the legacy of the “matrix world order”. Failing to do this will result in the restoration of the dark patterns, like computer trojan viruses and malware. Perhaps this time around it will have a new happy face of the new age/new thought as a cover over to fascism.

The history and beliefs that have been imbedded in the human meme-sphere have been for the most part creations and manipulations by both earthly and non-earthly overlords. Thus for myriad generations, humans have been living under complex layers of falsehoods. The realization of the truth of the September 11, 2001 events brings into question much of the modern control order and for many can only be met by a combination of denial and stunned disbelief. This is a type of social trauma. It is a deep social and personal trauma for humans to discover that their ordinary lives and those of their ancestors and that of what they are preparing their children for.

None of the foregoing negates the essential divinity and cosmic right of humanity to its destiny as spiritual beings. What is required is a determined detachment from the illusions and falsehoods upon which society is based. Simultaneous with this, a profound and focused intention to connect with our true nature as spiritual beings first and foremost and to act in accord with such realization is essential.

Between these much truth can be learned and applied to creating a new way of being among people. There are no national or global leaders or organizations capable of achieving this and none that are honest and true enough to make such a claim. It is only through the concerted work of people at their living and working community that this can happen. Natural networks of such communities of people can eventually constitute a new type of community that is dispersed globally. As the old ways breakdown further, these conscious cooperative communities will be vital in inspiring many to apply their example.

“The Ahrimanic Deception” - by Rudolf Steiner

Note: The following is excerpted from a much longer document by Rudolf Steiner in 1919. He is one of a very rare few who really understood the dark forces. In place of the term “Ahriman” one could substitute the broader term “dark forces”. It makes for very interesting reading in light today’s situation.

... “Ahrimanic powers use all that is derived from old circumstances of heredity in order to set men against each other in conflicting groups. All that comes from old differences of family, race, tribe, peoples, is used by Ahriman to create confusion. “Freedom for every nation, even the smallest . . .” These were fine-sounding words. But the powers hostile to man always use fine words in order to bring confusion and in order to attain the things that Ahriman wishes to attain for his incarnation. ... If we inquire: Who stirs up nations against each other? Who raises the questions that are directing humanity today? - the answer is: the Ahrimanic deception which plays into human life. And in this field men very easily let themselves be deceived. ... For, you see, Ahriman skillfully prepares his goal beforehand; ever since the Reformation and the Renaissance, the economist has been emerging in modern civilization as the representative governing type. ... In the nineteenth century the “economical” man is replaced for the first time by the man thinking in terms of banking, and in the nineteenth century there is created for the first time the organization of finance which swamps every other relationship. ... But just because this rulership of the mere ‘symbol for solid goods’ (that is to say, money - quotation from the lecture) has arisen, Ahriman has been given another essential medium for the deception of mankind. ...”

Hathors

The Dissolution of the Old World and the Birthing of the New

by Tom Kenyon and Hathors, Paros Island, Greece – 9.22.08

In this message we wish to give you some specifics regarding the financial and earth changes that are now upon you. We had hinted at the probability of this in previous planetary messages, but now the probabilities have become realities.

The main focus of our intent for this communication appears toward the end when we will share what we feel you can do, individually, to ride the storm.

The Current Financial Crisis

Those who have created/sustained the dominant planetary economic system are now finding themselves with their "backs against the wall." This is because the system, as it exists, is not self-sustaining. It is a form of imprisonment and is not in attunement with the shifting frequencies of consciousness that are taking place (albeit embryonically) on earth. And so financial institutions are attempting to re-organize themselves. But this is an attempt to perpetuate that which cannot be sustained. They are simply trying to re-arrange cards in the House of Cards.

But their attempts will ultimately be futile. This is because the current economic system is based upon greed, lies, control, and manipulation, and these thought forms, these cultural paradigms, are not in alignment with the new consciousness that is arising. What you are witnessing is the dissolution of that which needs to pass away, but that which will take its place has not arisen, and so it is a very frightening passage for those marooned in 3Dimensional reality.

The financial situation is complex and interconnected. The difficulties currently experienced in both the United States and England will affect the entire global economy. These will be difficult times in terms of monetary considerations, but paradoxically these can be extraordinarily uplifting times spiritually.

We anticipate further deterioration of the financial markets in the United States, Europe and Asia. The corporate structures responsible for perpetuating the dominant economic paradigms will find themselves on very flimsy ground. This will unquestionably result in the loss of jobs, real income, and an increase of suffering for individuals. Our advice is get to know your community, your immediate surrounding community, because as the system implodes, it will be local relationships that matter.

Another element that makes this period particularly volatile is that your perception of time is changing. Culturally perceived time is speeding up and more seems to be happening in less time. This is occurring both for individuals and for the culture as a whole. This rapid movement and changing of events shall become faster and faster.

You are entering a relentless pace in which your perception of time will increasingly accelerate. Because your perception of time is speeding up, and the events within those time-frames are increasing in number, many will enter a kind of shock, a state of disbelief. Specifically, it is unimaginable that the economic system can deteriorate so rapidly! What do you do when money is scarce and the things you are used to in your life are hard to acquire? These are critical questions.

Collective humanity is at a pivotal point for it is at the cusp of new cultural paradigms—a shifting from fixation on 3Dimensional reality into a realization of higher dimensions and the possibilities that will be open to all as a result.

While such a shift of cultural awareness sounds inviting, the actual process is extremely chaotic, which is what you are now in the midst of.

Factors of Novelty

As chaos increases, over the next several years, you can expect to see radical increases in what could be described as factors of novelty. By novelty, we are referring to a concept borrowed from your physics. We are not using the term as it is used in your mainstream culture, which is essentially the mindless pursuit of that which is new and different to fill in the void created by emotional desperation and emptiness.

Novelty, as we are using the term, refers to unintentional and unanticipated changes within a system. These changes can be positive, negative or both.

The term, factors of novelty, refers to the phenomenon that incidents of novelty exponentially increase as systems enter into a state of chaos. And the probability for chaos increases when you have many different systems interacting at accelerated rates. Unexpected results and situations, that were never anticipated or intended, can and will arise. As novelty increases worldwide, it will create mental and emotional strain for many individuals—primarily due to the fact that the paradigms that they have used to navigate through life will be (and are) dissolving right before them.

As difficult as these times are, and as difficult as they will be in the near future, there is an evolutionary catalyst within all of this.

New ways of thinking and new ways of generating resources have to be created if humanity is to survive. The old ways simply cannot continue. This is because they are not self-sustaining; they are intrinsically damaging to life; they are based upon lies and manipulation, and they are out of alignment with the new spiritual energies that are entering the scene. Nevertheless, those who have created and sustained the lies are doing everything in their power to keep the House of Cards intact.

Your evolutionary opportunity in all of this is to pass through the storm by living (metaphorically speaking) in the center of the hurricane—the eye of the storm—where it is calm. We will offer some suggestions for this in a moment, but let us turn our attention to the Earth Changes, for they are upon you.

In previous communications we said that the melting of the polar icecaps and the glaciers would accelerate faster than scientists anticipated, and indeed, this is the case. This shall continue to accelerate and the models of weather generated by computers will not accurately predict the changes. Like everything else upon your earth, all changes shall accelerate. From our perspective we see an increase in the intensity of hurricanes, and we see them arising in times when they do not traditionally occur. There will be an increase in tornados and aberrant weather. Alterations in the cycle of the seasons (where fall and winter patterns occur in spring and summer and vice versa) will continue to escalate. Plants and animals that have based their life rhythms upon these seasons shall be increasingly confused. Due to these and other climatic changes (as well as earthquake and volcanic activity), we anticipate increasing food and water shortages over the next two decades.

Another critical element in this evolutionary stew is the upcoming Presidential elections in the US. For better or worse this Office affects not just the United States, but also the entire world, and while there are differences between the two camps, in some fundamental areas they are the same. Those who pursue the Office (from within the ranks of the two major political parties) may indeed have their personal visions of what America and the world can be, but they are like pawns on a chessboard, and the ones who move the pawns are largely unseen. Unfortunately, their agenda is not the health and well-being of the United States, nor of the world. Their agenda is the consolidation of power. And the confinement and imprisonment of the human spirit that results from their blind pursuit of earthly power does not concern them.

An unprecedented collision of forces is now upon you. The economic and political situations, conjoined with earth changes are creating a crack in the facade. This facade is nothing less than the cultural, economic, political, and religious illusions and delusions that people have "bought into." More and more individuals will see through the lies, simply because things will fall apart. The curtains that were hiding the lies will fall. This is not a graceful process. But the old ways of being and doing must come to an end, in order that new ways can take root.

It shall be increasingly difficult to perpetuate the old world in the same ways it has been perpetuated. And by this we mean both the old world of your civilization and the old world of your own personal lives. As the wave of spiritual evolution accelerates, those who insist upon living in the old paradigms will find it increasingly difficult. Fear and paranoia will be the tone of the day, from the minutest aspects of personal life to international relations. This "tug of war" between that which wishes to remain locked in place, tugging against those forces that wish to open the world to new possibilities shall indeed become a surrealistic experience.

The evolutionary pressures upon individuals and society are extraordinary, and those individuals who are less centered (psychologically imbalanced) may experience an increase in irrational behaviors. Many countries around the world are already seeing a rise in irrational acts and unusual crimes.

Escape Velocity

We have spoken about it on numerous occasions, and although it is very simple, it is a powerful ally. Your word for it is appreciation and what we mean by this is the ability to appreciate the smallest things in your life as well as the large things.

Appreciation is a fascinating vibrational field with multiple effects. As you watch your economic system go through its metamorphosis, as you watch earth changes increasing and the stresses upon those around you escalating, including the escalation of stress on yourself, remember the doorway of appreciation. All you have to do is step into this field and the disturbances around you will be less able to effect you negatively. The situations you are dealing with might not change, but your emotional response to them will be of a higher order. And you will be more resourceful in how you deal with the challenges you are facing.

Were we to describe, in detail, the probable future in terms of negative events, it would be overwhelming. That is not our intent, and so we will not discuss it. What we wish to discuss is escape velocity. How do you escape the negative, imprisoning forces that continue to confine you and the human spirit? The most efficient and simple way is to cultivate appreciation—as ridiculous as that may sound in the face of the immense challenges facing your earth. Appreciation is a key that will unlock the doorway to the new world, even as the old world dissolves and falls apart, as it must.

As the spiritually driven evolutionary forces increase, and the rip in the fabric of your civilization becomes clear to more and more individuals, there will be a tendency for those who are fixated on 3Dimensional reality (without access to the higher dimensions of themselves) to enter into a state of mental and emotional shock, a kind of numbness. You can recognize these numb people because they will walk and talk like normal, but they are like zombies, half aware, half alive. Have compassion for these individuals because they are caught between the old world that is passing away and an uncertain future that has yet to be born. Have compassion, yet be wary of them. Do not let them seduce you into their numbness and fear.

If you learn to live in appreciation, you will enter a domain, a vibration that will carry you through the chaos of these times. You will find a type of solace and comfort, and the vibrational rate of your energy body will increase. At some point you will reach what we call escape velocity. You will easily step out of the illusions and the lies of the old world. You will see them for what they are, and you will become a joyous co-creator of a new world that is being birthed even as the old world passes away right before your eyes.

Thoughts and Observations from the channel, Tom Kenyon

When the Hathors gave me this particular planetary message there was no hint that the Wall Street fiasco was coming. At least I hadn't heard about it, let's say that.

I am amazed at how quickly things are changing and I have to acknowledge that the Hathors were bang on (once again).

When I was in the eighth grade, my algebra teacher would always introduce a new section of the curriculum with a slight grin on her face. She would look down at the book and then up at the class with these words—"it's going to get worse before it gets better."

I think that's what the Hathors are saying here as well. We are all in for a heck of a ride. But the strange thing about collective mayhem is that there are always islands of sanity, solace and comfort. I agree with them that we must find this within ourselves, and I agree with them that it is probably a good idea for us to get to know our neighbors.

As usual, the Hathors emphasize the importance of appreciation. They say at one point that we need to cultivate appreciation for the small things in life, not just the big. And as they have said previously, we need to learn how to create this feeling in the moment without having a specific reason to be happy.

That may seem odd to some, choosing to experience appreciation when nothing has happened to make us feel that way. But essentially what the Hathors are saying is that appreciation is a specific vibration of consciousness and when we are in that vibration we are elevated. And I suspect that such skills as self-elevation (when many around us are in distress) will be an excellent skill to have.

Like all skill building, repetition and actually doing it (in this case, entering into appreciation) is the key. If you are new to these Hathor messages, I encourage you to go to the Archives and take a look at their postings regarding Ecstasy and the Heart. It is a very interesting and beneficial way of experimenting with the state of appreciation.

And although they do not mention it in this message, you would find their messages about the Holon of Balance and the Holon of Healing helpful. Descriptions of how to create Holons also appear in the Archives. (link: <http://www.tomkenyon.com/managing-subtle-energy-during-earth-changes/>)

As many of you no doubt know, the Chinese word for transformation consists of two ideograms that translate as—danger and opportunity. There is no question that we are entering into dangerous times. But there are opportunities as well.

The evolutionary question is: will you, me, and we (the great collective) find the opportunities to create a new future for ourselves? Or will we get quagmired in the old world of perception and belief?

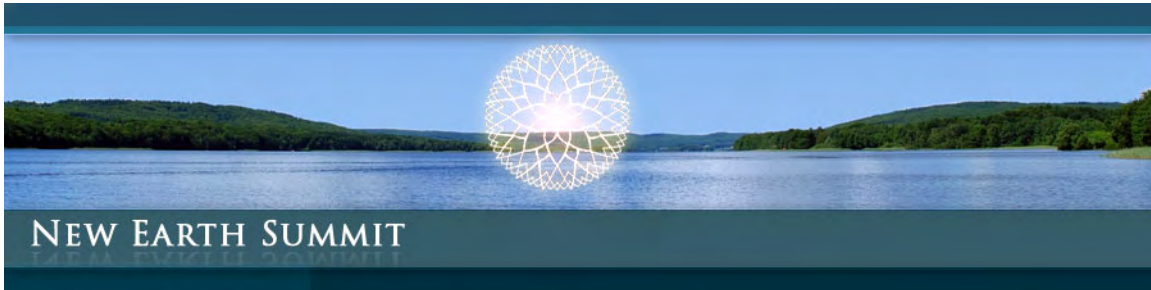

If the Hathors are right about this, and I think they are, we would all do well to cultivate more appreciation. Then perhaps, we will self-elevate enough to recognize that we live in an amazing universe brimming with possibilities even as those of us in the old world struggle with how to enter the new.

New Earth Summit: A Montana Gathering

Invitation to New Leaders

E-mail: info@pfcn.net for further information.

This invitation is extended to those who are most called to be leaders in creating new types of community and society that will be a part of the social-spiritual evolution of humanity. Some of you receiving this have been involved in political campaigns, some in alternative community efforts, land based or home-based, and in various other undertakings.

There are no “big names” speakers as this is not about promoting personalities or existing organizations. This is all about you: individuals who are calling themselves forth to help build a transition for people to a more evolved and awakened future.

Alex Kochkin will be presiding over the weekend and selected participants will be invited to give short presentations that address certain specific themes outlined below. This is perhaps the only opportunity for a group like this to meet in person. It will be important to maintain contact with one another following this event. With a large enough number of participants, a dedicated facilitator may be invited.

A short background summary for Alex is included in specific invitations. He has decades of experience in social science, technology, business, government, esoteric matters, and much more. A more detailed version will be prepared for those attending, as well as backgrounds on other participants.

Major topics or themes include:

- Overall situation in the USA and the world and where events are most likely headed.
- Principles of awakened, conscious community and how to apply them.
- Examples of meme engineering used control the thinking process and limit awareness, how to recognize these language patterns, how to counter them in your own work.
- Truth speaking to groups, truth speaking to power
- What is the substance and purpose of this “new leadership”? How it can help people prepare their own transition from a dysfunctional system to one based on evolved principles.

Agenda

Prior to the event a selection of articles and papers will be circulated by email to all confirmed participants. These will include background and presentations by each of the participants. Prior to the gathering, the private discussion forum will be opened up to those confirmed to begin the process of introduction of each person and their ideas and insights. The result will be a more productive gathering and efficient use of time.

- Friday afternoon introductions, opening presentation with Q&A, and discussion of Saturday and Sunday.
- Saturday 11-5pm breakfast, dinner, and evening open
- Sunday 11-5pm breakfast, dinner, and evening open
- Monday departures (or late Sunday for those who cannot stay into Monday).

If there is enough interest to hold a mid-day Monday session, provision will be made.

When this event ends, it will be important that participants maintain contact with one another to be share ideas and insights and to be of solid and meaningful support to one another. A password protected discussion forum will be set-up under NES Forums to help facilitate this process and Alex will be available for ongoing dialogue by phone and email.

This allows participants a great deal of unscheduled time to freely interact with one another.

The cost is approximate as it is based on the number of people participating. We are not expecting to make money from this event, only cover costs. What comes after this gathering will be up to those participating to follow-through on.

The location will be at a Missoula, Montana hotel. An international airport is nearby as well as interstate highway Route 90. Once confirmations are received, hotel details will be made available.

Each participant will be required to provide written background on themselves, to include professional background, summary of special skills and abilities, and an essay on their personal calling relative to creation of new way for human to be with itself and the planet.

A short questionnaire will also be prepared that covers specific points.

In the interests of free discussion and sharing, no recording of the discussions will be allowed.

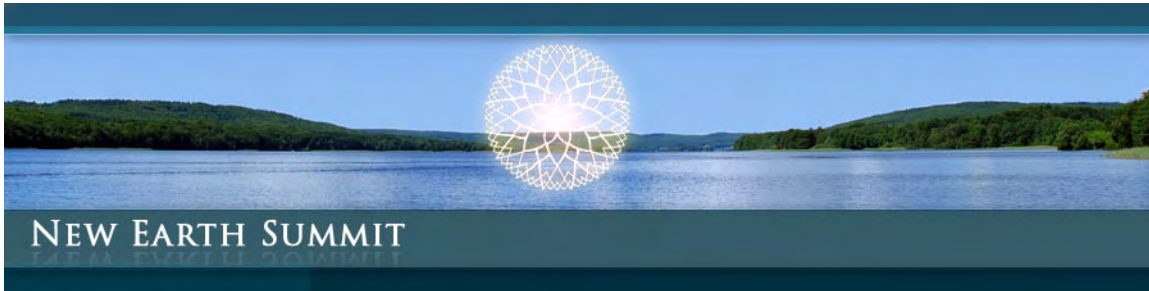

We considered this 3-day retreat in Montana as very important for people from all locales to gather and explore what awakened new community means in the context of the great changes that are coming. This is also an opportunity to discuss mundane and practical matters as well. Hopefully this would be of value and may help seed the new work. This gathering would also provide mutual support for one another, as each engages in unique work from their locales.

Global Awakening:

Vision Statement from 1997

Global awakening means individuals becoming aware of and embracing their true nature and destiny as embodied spiritual Beings. This truth goes beyond the limitations of historical beliefs concerning self, time, space, and matter. This realization concerns remembering who and what we are beyond the ordinary considerations of self as well as activating new dimensions of Being never before realized. The vastness of this destiny is such that it can only be known as it creates itself.

Global awakening acknowledges the approaching end of humankind's felt separation from Spirit and Source. Increasing numbers of people throughout the world are experiencing higher levels of consciousness in ways without precedent. This awareness, which goes beyond all the religions and doctrines of history, is of the universal Divinity within all and is part of All that Is. It is a state of full consciousness.

Earth-based experience has served as an intense practice of both separation and longing for Oneness. This is now being resolved and integrated into a new experience of both Unity and Diversity. Unity refers to Oneness of all of creation, diversity refers to the uniqueness contributed by each of us. As more people feel their connection with each other and with all of Creation, we see this awakening unfold.

Like a seed that has found a nourishing environment, a new type of human being is emerging, connected by universal love and spiritual awareness. New potentials are being activated within humankind. As in the birth of any new species, our very cellular material is changing to accommodate new energy patterns or inner Light. The cells of our matter are encoded with unlimited potential.

A marriage between heaven and earth, between spirit and matter, is giving birth to something new and wonderful. It means new possibilities for human existence, a new vibration for Earth, and new possibilities for all of Creation. Creation is re-creating Itself.

- from 1997 Vision Statement of Fund For Global Awakening, from the founders
