

New Earth, A new trajectory?

Once Upon a Time, Long Long Ago, and Far Far Away...

By John Crawford

Once upon a time, long long ago and far far away the Earth traveled through the universe as a wandering star. There was a time we remember in the deepest part of ourselves that we saw a sky with no sun, no stars, no night, just a sky that had a simmering light that showed everything with no shadows and no illusions. In that time, we were at peace with everything and everyone. There was no war, no fighting and no killing of other living things. Many were able to live with no more than the waters of life that flowed everywhere and one could just drink of this water for total sustenance.

Now we came into a place where there was a sun in the sky and the people and animals no longer talked with each other. We became a people separate from the others on the planet and from the other peoples on the planet. Fighting and war between the peoples on the Earth and the other living things on the planet became the normal way of being. We no longer saw ourselves as a part of Creator and of its creation. We saw ourselves as separate from everything. The peoples no longer talked with the plants and animals on the Earth and our connection to spirit became a thing to fear and desire at the same time.

There were many on the Earth that still held onto the connection but they became withdrawn from the peoples and only shared their wisdom with a few. Many held onto a small brief connection to the animals and plants but it was more for a way of using them for power to sustain their existence upon this new and different Earth. Why had this happened and what needed doing to change this existence into the Eden that we remember within the deepest part of ourselves?

Earth as a Wanderer

Once upon a time, the Earth traveled through the universe, only stopping in an area for a brief stay. This stopping could be for many months or years and sometimes for many years. This is because the Earth is a part of the healing of all of the creation structure everywhere. We are familiar with the idea that we have come into this place to help with the healing of the world or of the universe as a whole. This can be true and is true for some planets and even larger structures of the universe. A planet can be a source of healing physical structure just as we are a source for healing others around us.

There are certain planets that have a different energetic structure, a structure that allows it to move in order to be at the locations where most needed. It has been said and recognized that the Earth and other planets have a life force; an identity that is similar but on a greater scale to our own energetic structure. That it is alive has consciousness, a soul that is evolving just as we evolve. There are twelve planets within the structure of this section of the universe whose mission is to help keep the balance within the universal structure and to go into areas that are in need of healing and bring The Creators light to that section in need. The Earth is one of these twelve planets.

Sometimes when the area or section is in deep difficulties the planets will come in a larger group massing more than just one or two of the planets. In this are there are twelve planets that have come together to help with the healing. Some of the planets have engendered damage beyond easy recovery. (At least two.) For these Creator will come in and give new life and a new purpose to evolve and be. This planet and the peoples within and upon it (peoples, animals, plants, minerals and all energetic life forms) were almost one of the unrecoverable ones. We are now in the final stages of cleaning up the structures and energies so that we can again become the wanderer and healer of old. It may be that soon the Earth will leave the orbit of this solar system and become a planet with no night and one that no longer has any darkness of any sort, physically or energetically.

When this happens, the physical structures change dramatically and the life forms on the planet evolve. Some leaving the physical structure to come back as a new and different species, others just evolve without leaving the structure. How this happens is different each time the Earth moves into its wandering stage there is dramatic change with all life on the planet. What and how is unknown until it happens. What some know is that there have always been life forms on the Earth that have within them the Soul. Those with souls are Beings that are here to know The Creator and to evolve into Creator Beings themselves. We are on one of the most wonderful places to learn the secrets of creation, learn the lessons of becoming creators and to help the other worlds within this beautiful creation to evolve and to grow into creation.

We will soon be leaving this solar system and begin our wandering anew. Will it be the physical Earth, moving out of the solar system or will it be an energetic Earth leaving the physical Earth to continue on its path of evolving? This is unknown at this time, what is known is that there will be a parting from this space and an evolving of all species that exist upon the Earth. We are in a wonderful time, the old damaged structure of this universe is healing and we are breaking free from the darkness and structure that held us in bondage for so long.

It is a wonderful time to be here for many of us. It has been difficult to be here and to do the work of healing all that has been wrong and all that has gone wrong but it has been one of the most wonderful and powerful growing experiences for all who have worked to heal this place. Let us now turn our hearts, minds and spirit to the new adventure that is awaiting us within the next few years and let us celebrate our freedom and our new growth that we are now beginning to experience and that is now here to hold and grow.

Once Upon a Time...

From Alex Kochkin

Until John sent me his “once upon a time story“, the first I encountered the notion of “earth” leaving orbit was in the channeled material of Ken Carey from the mid-1980’s where he described a higher vibratory earth populated by higher vibratory residents. He described a period of development that would result in the emergence of a collective being that included the matter of earth and all its higher vibratory biology –and the successors to the human species. Together they would comprise a sentient collective organism that would then take earth on its own path –a planetary size bio-sentient spaceship on a voyage of exploration of creation. In my view at the time, perhaps twice the present envelope as the present physical earth.

I have had inklings of this on and off over the years. Last year I found myself viewing earth from space and saw its axis tilt change (maybe 20 to 30 degree it seemed –maybe more). Not long afterwards, I had another experience in which I saw the earth leave its present orbit but I did not see where it would go. I could not tell who or what was directing it –or when. It also seemed to me that it could happen much sooner than Ken Carey’s inspired writing. A few others have seen something similar. Recent research provides an informed basis for the earth having changed its orbit once before as well as there having been a very different configuration of planets in our local system. Various old predictions have also spoken to Earth changing its solar orbit.

It was also unclear to me and others who I have questioned whether we were seeing the present physical earth familiar to ordinary human awareness –or the “New Earth”, a higher vibratory earth, taking off on this new journey. However, it was my impression that I was seeing the “New Earth” and this would be consistent with earlier insights into the existence of a higher vibrational earth. (GA News Oct. 2007 on New Earth <http://www.pfcn.net/napsum-bull.html>) It is worthy of your attention to examine the work of Velikovsky, Talbott and others who make an excellent case for the earth having had a different orbit in ancient times and that humans even survived the experience.
