

Global Awakening News

Commentary and Guidance for Enlightened Change During Rapidly Changing Times

~ Special article reprint ~

January 2008

“State of the Vision – Future Views to 2010”

by Alex Kochkin

These essays are presented for their value to anyone who cares about the future as humanity prepares to make the greatest shift in consciousness and existence ever. We cover a wide range of topics including social-values research, “future-views”, the world situation, and advanced spiritual perspectives.

“GLOBAL AWAKENING means individuals and communities becoming aware of and embracing their true nature – one of interconnectedness, service, and spirituality, as we express extraordinary dimensions of our larger being. “

January 7, 2008

State of the Vision

2008 Future-views to 2010 and onwards

By Alex Kochkin

Disclaimer: This is a composite of personal intuitive insights and technical analyses from various sources. The remarks reflect what coherence and concordance there is among these diverse sources. We take no responsibility for the accuracy of these remarks or for any actions you may take in response to your reading this material.

The material contained herein does not make specific predictions as to dates, fame, or fortune. Anyone claiming to do so would be foolish under the sort of fluid conditions we are seeing now. Likewise, it would be foolish to believe detailed predictions under these circumstances. Regardless, our future lies not in our material forms but in a higher dimensional state of consciousness and existence. Events will bear this out over the coming one to three years.

Note: for those who are rely on the email digest form of this update, we urge that you go to the main download site for the full PDF of this that includes various graphics and captioning.

Preface

Current circumstances present a strong challenge to live from a position of steadiness and relative detachment derived from a high-level spiritual reference. Nevertheless, that is the new way. Decoupling from the old in every material and energetic way possible is “order of the (new) day”. Understandably, the chaotic and stressful events of the mundane world exert a persistent influence that requires constant referral to one’s nature as an eternal spiritual being. Some will find in these pages greater resonance in the predictions of a dire nature, and others will find greater resonance with the evolutionary transformational processes referred to. To morph a popular expression, “Be aware... be very aware!”

Introduction

Anticipated events for 2008 and 2009 include a confluence of nearly inconceivable natural and man-made crises that, by all accounts, will bring about the collapse of economies, governments, and social order. Anyone touched by these events will be so obliged to evaluate what is truly most important in their lives and, for many, what existence itself means. By 2010, nearly everyone on earth will have a vastly changed perspective on life. As we touch upon this in the ending sections, humanity can look forward to its continuity, but only in ways very different than presently imaginable.

Understandably, many people prefer to gloss over or ignore the difficulties ahead and focus on a sort of “positive” optimism that reassures that “all will be well” --eventually. While this may be a useful attitude at times, it is best to be aware and prepared, not unlike looking both ways when crossing a busy street. For those who believe in the power of human intention and divine intervention, these times will demand the greatest focus on higher self and God-consciousness –and the least focus on what seems to be unraveling all around.

By most accounts, we have crossed over a threshold that leads to a period of dramatic changes in our inner and outer existence, as the events of 2008 onwards will demonstrate.

Generally, there appear to be two types of changes: one involving the external world most people identify as “ordinary reality” –the other involving the inner or subtle world where the power of our true consciousness as spiritual beings reigns.

For those predisposed, there is the possibility of major transformations in consciousness occurring during summer, and with tangible evidence. In these pages we always use the terms change in consciousness to mean alterations and expansion of awareness, which in turn implies changes in the energy structures that govern physical existence. This has nothing in common with superficial changes in opinions or attitudes, as it is misunderstood and misused in common parlance.

Circumstances will favor humanity’s changing how it conducts its affairs and re-organizing itself in ways that further encourage the expression and practice of spiritually awakened community. The more this succeeds, and humanity manages to build capacity for positive change during the coming few years, the greater the likelihood that humanity can look forward to the next two generations giving rise to a new, more evolved humanity. This will be a new human species that breathes and flows with its physical world by means of spiritually awakened consciousness. Much depends on the choices made now.

One of the greatest expected changes will be in the rise in spiritual consciousness across the planet. For many it will open new dimensions of existence beyond “ordinary” reality. For greater numbers of people, the breakdown of the “control matrix” will provide opportunities for new community, new economies, and new governments. Perhaps along lines of trust, caring, and service in a context of making spirituality a part of society --a dream long held captive by the major religions and the global control elite.

A more evolved humanity will emerge on this Earth. They will tap the spiritual realms to help clean up pollution and address material wellbeing. Much from the spiritual realms will be necessary to help guide humanity begin a new way of living that no longer based on exploitation, consumerism, and material privilege. Much of the old ways and beliefs must be cleared and corrected as humanity finds new ways to be with one another and their planetary home. Will any of this happen quickly and easily? Initially, it is not likely. However, as more people come to experience a permanent shift in their perceptions, this process will accelerate.

The greater the capacity that is achieved, the greater the rate of positive evolutionary change.

Summary

Throughout 2008 and 2009 there will be a confluence of earth change events involving weather, oceans, as well as submarine and terrestrial lands. These will intensely compound the problems of a global economic catastrophe. Rain and flooding will contribute to the possibility that global pandemics becoming great and soon. The stresses from these circumstances --and growing awareness of the extent of corruption and deceit by public and private “leaders” --will likely give rise to violent outbreaks of social unrest in certain countries, including the USA. Before the end of 2008, these problems will be clear to even those who are presently very unaware. Economic crises will persist through 2009 and onward as humanity sorts out for itself what is truly important to its existence. New types of social-economic relationships will form, including new networks of new local community in response to the crises. Through 2010, most of what passes as “modern civilization” will undergo major deconstruction, and new social structures will take shape. As more human settlements are disrupted by various changes to the environment, an already stressful situation will become more so. Humanity will be faced with decisions for situations that are not in the collective memory of anyone alive today. It will largely be up to local and regional communities of people to address their own material and social welfare.

Over recent months, an unusual number of intuitives and psychically sensitive individuals have been noticing major earth changing events in the near future. These events all carry large emotional and other energies that move outward through time and space and cannot be readily dismissed given the clarity and consistency of the reported experiences.

So, what to do about the mounting challenges of everyday life? In the long term, there is a limited range of anticipatory actions. In the short term, it would be prudent to assume you have barely several months from now in which to prepare. Assume disruptions to that which modern society relies upon for its pretend world of “normalcy”. Food, fuel, power, and other basics will all experience shortages due to a confluence of economic and environmental disruptions and the breakdown in a delicate supply chain that relies on low inventory and fast transportation. For the few who can afford precious metals, these can only offer short-term benefit. Gardens, seeds, food preparation and healthcare skills will all be of great help, as will be cooperative storehouses of various materials.

If you know otherwise or have already made such preparations, mentally, physically, spiritually, then you are in a better position to be of help. Practically, it will not be matter of relying on any of the established social, political, or economic institutions or structures. Practically, it will be a matter of community organization and cooperation for mutual aid and support.

Ongoing changes to the invisible energy structures that define reality at many levels mean radical alterations in consciousness and a basis for a sorting out of humanity. Thus there will be a coming together of a new type of community, based on a high level of energetic resonance that transcends ordinary reality. This would represent an invisible counterpart to ordinary forms of cooperative community that form in response to the crises. Your future is a matter that is already being worked out between you (your human personality self) and your higher self and higher spiritual nature.

Go deeply into your higher awareness and welcome new perspectives as to what is truly most important to you as a spiritual being who happens to have a human body and human personal identity, as only one aspect of a much greater self.

Crises and Change, Vital Dynamics

A severe economic crisis is now underway and there is a tremendous undercurrent of frustration and confusion within society over the state of personal and collective lives. Years

Looking two ways: Some will continue to see only what is familiar, while others who are more aware will see what is new and years of continuous warfare introduce profound levels of trauma spanning generations with no adequate resolution having occurred to the dynamics that feed such conflicts.

We anticipate growing economic and political crises that not even the “powers that be” can “manage” their way around. This period marks the beginning of the end of their rule over humanity. Expect much confusion and contradictory pronouncements, including those who (falsely) assure everyone that things are not that bad, or that they and their organizations deserve your support so they can make everything “right” –but for whom you may very well ask?

Dramatic changes are being described in similar ways by some of the most aware observers of our ordinary and non-ordinary realities. What can be described is a potent combination of major changes to our social, planetary, and space environments. In short, humanity is now facing massive climate and other changes in the planetary environment, food and fresh water crises, and a breakdown in economic, social, and political structures.

Consider, for a moment, the present state of humanity. Without the breakdown of established structures of social control and no awakening to spiritual consciousness, people would most likely continue sliding by in the prevalent ongoing state of “non-awareness”. Without such a breakdown, then the “powers that be” could continue with their terrible plans for centralized global control and feeding off of humanity. Without such a breakdown and with the continuation of “business as usual”, the more aware and spiritually-aligned would withdraw. Thus from a higher level of oversight, such a situation could be considered unacceptable and thus we are in a “now or never” situation to make the shift in consciousness and existence.

Consider also a confluence of natural and man-made crises that would serve the purpose of breaking down most of humanity’s self-centeredness as individuals, nations, and as a species, thus obliging a great many to find ways to cooperate and change their ways. Consider these crises to be part of a birthing process for which it is now time for the child (a new humanity) to be born.

As the old and familiar become increasingly untenable, people will be obliged to find new ways to be with one another and with Earth. People will discover their connection to higher consciousness of creation and what it tangibly means to their lives. This would represent a shift to a new evolutionary path for the human species.

We are in a period of a great sorting out in terms of the overall human population as well as for each individual’s basic intent and choices.

What will people’s responses be to a breakdown of governments, economies, and loss of life and homes? Will conflict or cooperation be the norm? How many more will turn to higher self, to God, or to whatever they identify as greater consciousness? At the very least it will be people’s true intentions that matter most. What actions may be possible from such higher guidance will provide some a basis for a new way of being for themselves and many more over time.

Earth Environment

Weather-related problems are anticipated that are way beyond human conception or ability to cope, including intensely destructive winds, expanding desertification and droughts in some areas, flooding and intense rainstorms in others, and sometimes a crossover of these patterns. As this is being written, tornado swarms in the northern Midwest have been occurring –an area that usually does not experience such ferocious storms.

Changes in coastal environments will force many inland. Deformations to the ocean floor, rapidly melting ice masses in the Arctic, Sub-arctic, Greenland, and Antarctica will cause dramatic problems for coastal areas. In some of these areas, the melting rate of the ice is influenced by magma heating. Related are various effects, including higher water levels, major climate changes due to alteration in ocean currents, an increase in earthquakes and volcanism, and a growing possibility for very large masses of ices breaking or sliding into the ocean causing tidal surges.

Tectonic shifts also mean rising and falling of terrestrial and submarine land areas, thus inland areas can become flooded with ocean water, new islands can appear, and some areas gain in elevation. Some of these geologic changes can happen in a gradual manner with ongoing shaking, other times with extreme suddenness. We are anticipating a period of major earthquake activity between October 2008 and March 2009.

Alterations in the distribution of the mass of planet Earth, alterations in our solar system, alterations in our relationship with the Milky Way Galaxy, and more, can all influence the very tilt of the Earth's axis, its orbital path and more. Likewise, a shift in the axis of rotation can influence the distribution of planetary mass. A shift in the Earth's axis in the next few or several years is quite possible. The question is to what extent and at what point in time and space will some sort of stabilization of a new axis of rotation occur?

All this will have a severe impact on human settlements, as well as food production, electricity, transportation, fuels, etc. The effects of these environmental changes exacerbate financial crises as it becomes more and more difficult to address both emergency needs as well as restoration. Atmospheric and oceanic changes indicate continued depletion of important ocean fisheries, an increase in algae blooms and “toxic tides”, as well as other problems from bio-organic pollution impacting coastal areas. Where there is extensive rain and flooding, molds and fungi will have direct effects on health as immune systems will be unable to cope and viral and bacterial diseases will have unexpected effects in terms of severity of symptoms and the extent of population that will be so affected.

The Special Sensor Microwave Imaging radiometer was used to create this image of the 2007 Greenland melting anomaly which reflects the difference between the number of melting days occurring in 2007 and the average number of melting days during the period 1988 to 2006. -- from NASA/Earth Observatory

Space Environment

We are roughly at the mid-point of a “big shift” in terms of cosmic energies and astronomical alignments relative to major solar and cosmic long cycles. The plane of our solar system is shifting relative to the plane of the Milky Way galaxy and this brings much by way of change in our solar system and earthly environments.

New conceptual models are being discussed in which the exchange of energies between distant bodies and regions of space directly affect a planetary environment. It has only been in recent years that relationships between solar radiations and earth environment have been acknowledged. It is only recently that questions have been raised as to the effect on our planetary environment from powerful gamma ray bursts. For example, such incoming energy coincided with the December 2004 Indonesian quakes and tsunamis. Major weather patterns will be influenced heavily by electrical and electromagnetic trans-space energies. It is known in some circles that electrical and electromagnetic forces from space have more bearing on major hurricane/typhoon formation than do surface temperatures. These electrical effects are the basis for weather modification weaponry. These “trans-space” energies relative to solar, galactic, and beyond will have a great influence on the massive atmospheric storms anticipated for 2008.

Dramatic manifestations in the skies and space are expected to be experienced by many and will cause many to question reality. Some people may initially (and mistakenly) attribute these to solar radiations or more earth-bound factors, and various preventive measures will be suggested, not unlike the UV radiation scares. Certain bodily symptoms have been tracked to precede or coincide with solar energy bursts such as strong M and X-class flares –including dizziness, headaches, nausea. It is not uncommon for these symptoms to precede the flares’ arrival at earth by one day and sometimes up to three days.

Those who try to intellectually relate space energies with shifts in consciousness and behavior will find answers to be elusive. There is more going on than what the physical sciences can possibly measure and describe, especially emanations from higher levels of cosmic consciousness that are now permeating all of creation.

Computer generated map (2003) by David Law at the University of Virginia showing this Solar System (yellow dot) to be near the intersection of a portion of the Milky Way and a portion of Sagittarius Galaxy.

These changes to ordinary awareness are in connection with efforts to clear and transform humanity and earth from a limited and tightly controlled existence to one of expanded dimensions of existence and awareness.

It is a good time to be very aware of yourself and your environments!

Political, Economic, and Social Environment

Those areas of the world that are most closely tied to the American-Anglo focused interests will fare the worst, yet nearly every country will be feel serious impact of the economic and/or planetary environment changes. As banks, governments, and economies falter and some collapse, major natural disasters will lead to tremendous social pressure to cease all military operations and use military forces to help with urgent needs for disaster recovery. This represents an unprecedented level of social stress, never experienced in the USA or in any of the other areas most affected.

It is possible that with the breakdown of existing “norms”, great numbers of people will be open to new possibilities that they could never have considered before. From this something new and beneficial can emerge where before there is now a badly distorted society ruled by a plutarchy hiding behind a façade of non-existent democratic process and who rely on a formal “security-state”.

There is no international leadership in any position to help steer humanity to a more humane, ethical, or spiritual future –and there is no such individual or group in such a position to do the same within the USA –although there are many pretenders. It is most likely that in many countries local and regional leaderships will develop into de facto governments. It is naïve to think that any truly honest and beneficial candidate will make it to the U.S. presidency given the tight control over information, the conditioned laziness of most people’s intellectual process, and the tight control over caucuses, primaries, polling, and the rest of the voting process. As stated previously, it will be difficult time for many and the best opportunity for new social-political processes will be at the more local levels of population.

Several technical forecasts suggest major global economic crises well into 2009, with a few “deniers” describing a moderate recession with “recovery” in late 2008. Clever speculators will no doubt find ways to continue to take money at the expense of others. We expect a few major banks and major corporations to fail, as well as smaller ones that became heavily involved in mortgage speculation and crooked balance sheets. We are experiencing close parallels to the panic of 1907 and the outcome could be worse overall than the Great Depression of the twentieth century. We suspect that as far as most people are concerned, the severity of the situation will be plain nearing the latter months of 2008. Food prices will continue to rise dramatically as costs of fuel and agricultural products rise in response to financial and climate crises. Ongoing and intermittent scarcities of everyday consumer goods will be noticed everywhere –except of course surplus housing. A recent analysis of residential real estate in Virginia found property selling at 60% to 50% of previous sale prices. Oil and gold prices will continue to rise and the U.S. dollar will continue to fall in value. The main point we wish to make here is that there is no basis for economic “recovery”. Partly because of the dramatic changes in human political-economy and population and partly because it is simply time for dramatic changes in how humans relate to one another, their planetary environment, and their innate spirituality. Simply put, it is time for humanity to grow up and move on in its evolution.

Changes in the planetary environment are expected to influence failures in the electrical power grid beginning 2008. Erratic shortages in food and fuel are also highly likely, partly in response to economic problems, partly due to planetary changes. The possibility is great for international aid to be requested to help USA citizenry. Humanitarian missions would provide the first opportunity for Chinese and other foreign national presence in the USA, as many have been seeing in future viewing of the West Coast and elsewhere. Depending on the severity of the disaster, this could occur during the second half of 2008 or the early months of 2009.

There will be social reactions to economic stress, disclosures about the nature of the global power elite, and the growing ineffectiveness of officialdom to remedy mounting crises upon crises. Violent conflicts are most likely to occur in many countries and officialdom responds with repressive control measures. It will be up to people to rely on higher wisdom to prevail over excesses in civil unrest and retribution against those who held power over society.

A ratcheting up of changes to the planetary environment will cause great numbers of people to radically shift their perspective as to what (human) life is all about and what is important and what is not. Shifts in population are anticipated in response to these changes as well. This in turn further places stress on existing settlements where people are coping with many changes in their lives.

Diseases, disasters, and other factors will continue to reduce human population over coming years. Climate changes contribute to disease susceptibility, so does the very system of “modern” medicine that places money and control before public benefit. Indonesia, decided to stop donating samples of the bird flu and begin selling them. (It is an area that has a large number of cases with a high mortality rate.) Thus for over one year no new bird flu samples were sent to laboratories for study. Further, the petty competitiveness of academic research is such that vital information is withheld pending formal publication of papers –purely to help guarantee control and royalty monies. Given the time lag for publication, this means that the possibility of a global pandemic could occur with very little warning. The drug industry is so corrupt that some of its vaccines may well prove very harmful to people.

Ongoing war plans and made-up threats will continue as the powers-that-be desperately try to accelerate their plans for global control. As these fail, there will be greater social stress and calls for the downfall of those most involved in pursuing such actions. While it is likely that mounting financial and natural disasters will limit their abilities to wage war, a new situation may arise with risky military ventures intended to take advantage of natural disasters. While many people are confident for divergent reasons that there will not be a release of thermonuclear weapons, we do not share such optimism. As well, there remains the ongoing problem of the use of low yield nuclear weapons and the ongoing plague of depleted uranium munitions that blanket areas of their use with highly toxic and radioactive dust now circulating in the atmosphere.

There continues to be an increase in mainstream media reporting on UFO’s, perhaps to prepare the global population for formal disclosure over ET relationships with humans in power over the decades. While the question to many will be who are the “good guys”, there is the possibility of a attempt at moving quickly to a global police state by using the false threat of a staged ET “invasion”. These plans are not likely to succeed. Also, ET contact (with the “good guys”) would likely lead to unraveling of major belief/assumption systems and the downfall of major religions, governments, and social control. This is enough in the realm of possibilities for later 2008 into 2009 to mention it now.

There are two major tendencies within humanity engaged in a push-pull with one another, with a great deal of amplification occurring due to various influences:

“On one hand, there are those who are more aligned and focused on spiritual evolution than ever before. These individuals are a part of the early waves of humanity who are moving forward in their the evolution of consciousness and energetic make-up –surprisingly not all of them are aware of this! ...On the other hand there are those who are enmeshed and heavily identified with the dominant paradigm, the control matrix. This latter group includes both those of wealth and social-material power as well as those without wealth or social-material influence. ... while humanity is very much split over this, ...it is possible for individuals and networks to shift between these two paradigms.”

For the complete article, please see the State of the Vision section contained in the December 2007 Issue of Global Awakening News:

<http://newearthsummit.org/forum/index.php?PHPSESSID = 2d1065963050932d60460f4b5a2777a&topic = 44.0> or original article at:

http://www.pfcn.net/Bulletins/GA % 20News % 20-20December % 202007 % 20edition.pdf

As attitudes and beliefs are expressed and ordinary people react to events and what information is available through mainstream and alternative news sources, knowledge of these two basic dynamics can serve as a useful reference.

As Above & Below

The scenarios described above will help people to be more open to higher spiritual dimensions of existence as it will be plain to many that the old ways of living are no longer acceptable or viable. With the presence of powerful spiritual energies from higher realms of consciousness and more people turning their attention to higher consciousness, the transformation of a large portion of humanity into its next stage of evolution becomes possible. In the past, it would usually be only a very small number of people or special communities that would experience ascension.

We are now entering into a period of the separation of reality systems in which it is quite possible that there will be people who experience traumatic events and there will be those who do not, even if they are aware of such events occurring. These disparities would mainly not be due to differences of geographic circumstance, rather they would be due to changes in the vibrational fields of individuals. Those farthest from the transformational event horizon would be less likely to be aware of what was going on with those who are close to or through it. This process could unfold quickly in a few years or could perhaps take several more years.

There is a wide range of “end time” scenarios being projected in the collective sphere of human thought –mainly originating from influences that are outside the primary human-earth energy matrix. These also reflect an unconscious awareness of impending changes in the make-up of physical and/or temporal “reality”. Just because certain numbers of human personalities hold certain opinions and belief systems as to what the future should bring, doesn’t make those perspectives valid in terms of actual outcomes. As more and more people approach the transformational event horizon, these seemingly disparate beliefs will collapse into a narrow set of streams.

Present-day humanity is a diverse mix with origins both on and off-world. We cannot assume that the six and half billion people and their ancestors originated as a “native” species on this planet and certainly not from random assemblages of molecules. This of course challenges both the basic tenets of the dominant religions and their respective myths, as well as the “religion of science”. This is but one of many contributing factors to the official denial of extra-terrestrial relationships with Earth and its human residents right up to present-day. The Earth is not the center of creation, and humanity, as it presently regards itself, is not the first human-like civilization. There have been other Earth-based civilizations, some going back to before the period considered to be “ancient history” and before the timelines of common anthropology. In addition, other planets in our solar system have hosted various civilizations.

There have been many influences working with or upon what would be regarded as present-day humanity, some spanning long periods of time. Some have been here mainly to observe and advise, others became involved in the earthly and non-earthly “control politics”. We have now entered a new period in which the self-clearing and correcting processes initiated at the highest levels of creation are acting upon Earth as well as other regions of creation. One of the effects seen will be the steady diminishment of the power of the global controllers and any other interests that are parasitic and self-serving. This process is not a “miracle cure” with instant results. Humanity is faced with a few to several difficult years ahead. For most, it will not be an easy or pleasant period to live through. It will take a few generations before there would be no more individuals left alive who carry “toxic memes” from this era from which we are only now emerging.

We are living the end of the old world and the beginning of something new and wonderful.

The Great Sorting Out – A Tale of Two Realities

There is a growing awareness of and interaction with other realms of existence. Contemporary near death documentation is one example that provides insight into this. The record from the ancient past on Earth points to the existence of civilizations and extra-terrestrial origins that bear upon our present day situation.

In various circles, there has been serious discussion of new transformational processes and tangible effects. Just as intense solar storms can affect health and behavior, the influx of transformational energy will affect awareness and behavior, opening more people up to states of expanded consciousness. Some initial symptoms of these changes (and unique to each person) include: memory lapses, seeing lights and shapes, awareness of an alternate reality, experiencing oneself in another reality, changes to sleep patterns, apparent distortions in the flow of time, and more. One interesting reference point can be found in the IOOW-2000 research data. At the turn of the millennium, it was found that 11% of U.S. adults had experienced something of non-ordinary reality at least once and half that portion more than once. In analyzing a wider range of non-ordinary factors, 38% reported in the affirmative. Yet modern society does not honor or encourage such experiences.

The major changes underway need to be seen in a very large context. The largest we can offer is the clearing and restructuring of Creation-1 --the cosmic “Creation” that almost everything and everyone is part of.

For more discussion of this, see articles on New Creation and New Earth in the August-September issue of GA News link:

<http://newearthsummit.org/forum/index.php?topic=25.0> or original article at:
<http://www.pfcn.net/Bulletins/GA%20Aug-Sept%202007%20edition.pdf>

With the hold of the cosmic controllers broken and that of the global controllers soon to break down, humanity will have an opportunity to demonstrate (with a little help from the higher realms) that it can really make enough of a turnaround in its beliefs and behaviors so as to maintain a continuity of human population. The purpose would be to allow a more evolved version of the human species to come into being over the course of a few generations. There are already young children here who represent the start of this wonderful new development.

An alternative perspective is that this is the beginning of the end of humanity as most people would conceive of it. Humanity on earth would eventually be replaced by new settlers who are more suited to live in a state of conscious connection with the higher realms and in conscious connection with earth and its living, sentient environment.

These two perspectives are thinly separated by the qualities of humanity’s choices and intentions over the next few years. All forces of creation are primed for a major shift. The “ride” for those on Earth will be like no other. The dynamics are way beyond ordinary human actions and the only way to “ride” will be to shift along with it. This will require humanity to break out of its limited awareness and to do so rapidly. Help and support is available from the higher realms, but we must make the choices for ourselves. Our established norms are breaking down at the right time to make it easier for people to “let go” and make the transition.

Everything is changing in our physical, social, spiritual, and energy environments. However, it is not possible to foretell the “what and the when” due to two major factors: Alterations in the flow and function of time, and the difficulties associated with the clearing and removing of the pernicious influence of the “dark forces” in all arenas of physical and spiritual energies.

As of Dec 24-25th, 2007 it would seem, we are running on “new time” that is functioning in a new flow pattern to support humanity’s shift in consciousness and transformation.

Experiences of time distortions will be more common –either a rapid speeding up or an immense stillness, or an alternating of both.

The energy fields of Earth-1 and Earth-2 are now practically coincidental with one another in time and space. Since they remain vibrationally differentiated, Earth-2 is not readily apparent to the majority of humanity and access to the new Earth remains somewhat limited. Nevertheless, the very presence of new Earth is having a catalytic effect on what we would call old Earth as well as humanity as a whole.

It may well be that for a period of a few to several years, there will be those who will experience some of the worst of human legacy, those who will experience the best, and for some gradations in between. Over time, there will less connection between the extremes, as each may play out in vibrationally differentiated realities.

As part of this process, on Earth-1 (our presently familiar reality) can be renewed in some way, following great challenges to the existing human population leading to spiritual community with one another and conscious reconnection with higher self and higher realms of creation. There will be those who choose to make the journey with Earth-1 in a renewed Creation-1 cosmic environment, one cleared and “immunized” from the influence of what would be called the “dark forces”. There will be others who will choose to shift their existence to Earth-2 or to other avenues that are available for their spiritual evolution. For a while there will be a tentative relationship maintained between these two existences, these two worlds, each benefiting.

There would also be those who would move on to new dimensions of existence. While not great in numbers initially, these individuals may disappear from sight or leave their bodies behind as they shift over to their new existence –some with new bodies on Earth-2 or in other domains. (To describe this with a simple analogy, imagine you have just found a second home and you begin preparing it for your eventual arrival, you spend more and more time there setting up housekeeping and arranging things as you like them, and one day you do not return to your old home. Now imagine it possible to take your old home with you and arrive at a new destination with it much improved in every way possible.)

Some of these individuals would maintain awareness of how things are going on Earth-1 and some would volunteer to return in their “upgraded” form to aid many more in the transformation process and some would settle in what would be “protected” colonies that would include a mixture of Earth-1 residents who were already aligned with a spiritually awakened future on Earth-1. It is anticipated that over the coming years, the population of our present day Earth-1 will be greatly reduced and natural planetary processes would perform extensive recycling and cleaning of the detritus of the current civilization.

Where there remain human settlements, the residents would be engaged in cleaning and clearing of the old as well as developing new structures and processes that serve their future evolution. Some will be mainly focused on the ascension process. For those who may be skeptical of this, much has already been discovered and demonstrated of how thought and energy work together to create and alter the structure of material reality and much more. This extends to both healing of living organisms and to the modification of physical matter. These more advanced abilities will be of great benefit in working with the environment in ways that most people today are not aware is possible.

This situation has profound implications for individual choices and relationships at all levels. For those in transition, they will initially be pulled between the old familiar and the new, until they learn to identify with a new type of high level mutual resonance and coherency. This is one of the “secrets” to awakened conscious community, it is one way for people to practice a high level of shared resonance and to do so in practical ways, now. Furthermore, community such as this does not require close proximity or even meeting one another!

In looking farther ahead, Earth-2 will vibrationally or dimensionally separate from its present “docked” position and begin the process of becoming a true “spaceship Earth” with a “new Humanity “ as its co-pilot, companion, and co-creative partner. Eventually a new stage in development will be reached when together, they will no longer be dependent on orbiting within a solar system. This then will mark new stage in a vast process that once began its focus on the human form. A new collective planetary being that is made up of sentient matter, energy, diverse biology, and individual beings may emerge to eventually begin a grand journey together as “one of many“ and thus a remarkable new achievement of Creation would occur. Such a potential also exists for Earth-1, if its future partner-inhabitants are so prepared.

Conclusion

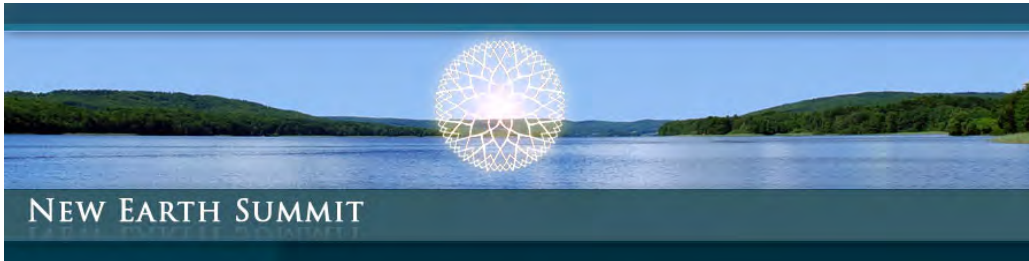

Even for those who may know of what lies ahead for them personally, it is not possible to place this on a human calendar. It is best to attend to what is most essential in one’s life without unnecessarily obsessing over it. Consider that you are about to be offered a major “life/career change” that has no set date and a “long-distance“ relocation. How will you handle those loose ends of the mundane? How will you leave your old life as you begin a new one? What is it that most needs to be done? Alternately consider that you know you are physically staying where you are, but that much is needed to improve the quality of trust in your relationships, of the level of care taken toward your physical and personal environment, and of how you may serve the greater purpose of an ever-evolving Creation and enjoy direct communion with Creator.

Ask to be connected with the very highest levels of Creator Consciousness. Ask for this. Demand it. It is your right. Welcome the transformations this brings.

~ ~ ~

Public Online Forum

Bringing Together Awakened Community

Home page: <http://www.newearthsummit.org>

Main forum page: <http://www.newearthsummit.org/forum/>

A forum that is free of advertisements and includes various thematic boards including:

- Special Articles to Consider
- Awakened Conscious Community
- Health and Harmony
- Predictions of Future Events
- General Discussion
- Books, videos, and music - Member reviews
- Spirituality, Transformation, and Ascension
- Dreams and Visions and Future Viewing
- World and National Events
- Changes in Planetary and Space Environments
- Sites of Special Interest – Weblinks

Contributors can submit material to posting. At present we have limited new posts and have been mainly tracking significant news and information about the changing human and planetary environment. Anyone can read what is posted. Submit material for posting by e-mail to: newearth@newearthsummit.org .

~ ~ ~

Global Awakening News

Published online at <http://www.pfcn.net/napsun-bul1.html> and available via e-mail service to opt-in subscribers.

The Global Interchange, Positive Future Consulting, Fund For Global Awakening, and Global Awakening Press are not now nor have ever been affiliated with any religious, political, or economic tendency; and most certainly are not aligned with any guru's, groups, or channeled entities.

To contact us by E-mail: info@pfcn.net; to contact us by postal mail: PO Box 969; Stevensville, MT 59870 USA