

Global Awakening News

Commentary and Guidance for Enlightened Change During Rapidly Changing Times

“A-List” Updates

28 August 2010 – Online/Radio Talk with Zany Mystic
(Lance White)

Transcript

Link to transcript: <http://www.pfcn.net/telecall/Transcript-28Aug2010-ZanyMystic.pdf>

Note: Some minor editing was done for readability and clarity. (italicized in parentheses are added postscript notes).

Lance: Alex Kochkin skillfully led a multi-tiered discussion, laying the groundwork for a framework of very large ideas about where we are in the cosmos. We began to talk about what it means to be in a "fallen sector", and how there are "Corrective Energies" coming into our 3D matrix in order to restore the original intent of our creation, which has been waylaid. A fascinating discussion with a brilliant mind!

Introduction from Lance:

My guest is Alex Kochkin. Alex is a Futurist, most concerned with the numerous aspects of global awakening. He manages the NES Forums (New Earth Summit) which are designed to explore the various aspects of awakening, ascension and the incoming "corrective energies" which relate to the 2012 window. In this show, Alex laid the groundwork for future discussions about our being in a "fallen sector" and how this affects human behavior. We also spoke about the connection to Source energy directly, which is our birthright and our natural ability. It is a hopeful dialogue, and good beginning to future shows.

http://www.bbsradio.com/host/afiresidechat/archives/a_fireside_chat_archive.php

Hello everyone and welcome to a fireside chat with Zany Mystic, I am your host Lance White tonight my guest is Alex Kochkin.

Since a very early age, Alex has been aware of the vastness of consciousness and has been concerned with human evolution. This also served to develop an early and ongoing interest in the natural and physical sciences. Since early 1989 he has been consciously devoted to the spiritual and physical transformation of the individuals, humanity and of the earth.

To find more about his present work go to www.pfcn.net. So let's meet Alex right now.

Lance: Alex, how are you tonight?

Alex: Oh quite good thank you. Been doing too much gardening this week, but other than that...

Lance: Ah, let's just kind of jump into the middle of something here and see where we go from there.

What is one of the most important things that is going on in the planet right now - that we should be thinking about and concerned about.

Alex: It depends on what one is focused on. If we are talking about what is going on the planet literally with people in the 3D realm as one they call it - it is utter chaos. There is no end in sight to that.

If we are talking about what's to come or what is incoming, it represents a total change. That's a whole other matter. That is really the challenge in being able to switch one's orientation, to put your focus and intention one place or the another – but it is not possible to have it both ways and to live that way. It's too distracting and disturbing. But you can be aware of what is going on, you know, like looking both ways and up and down when crossing streets. (Laughs.)

Lance: Well you know, your recent transcripts focus a lot on making the distinction between spiritual pursuits and I guess you can call it “the matrix” or the illusion we are in which includes the impending wars and the chaos that you said. I think that the listeners to these shows on BBS are pretty much aware of what's going on so we shouldn't need to lay too much ground work.

I think that most of the people on the show, that are listening to this show are interested in the transformation that it is on its way or that is here now either from some hub of the spoke like the Mayan Calendar or various prophecies. A lot of this, as you point out in your writings, have been influenced by the dark controllers and I am most interested in learning more about this being a fallen sector and what is beyond the fallen sector and how do we connect to that or are we connected and how do we start stepping out of this element of controlled matrix.

Alex: Wow, all that in 50 minutes? Many people think that they know what is going on. However, for example you can take any event like 9/11 or the Gulf of Mexico situation, the potential for war, etc. ...

TECHNICAL PROBLEMS - INTERRUPTED MUSIC

Lance: I am sorry for any interruption folks, mercury is retrograde so we are picking up where we left off. So continue Alex I am interested in what you have to say.

Alex: I think one of the things you asked about is “the fall”. These are all important questions and they bear upon a number of things in terms of realities so if I can wind my way back to your main questions and points maybe there will be a way to address many of these in context.

Lance: Ok, sure

Alex: So you interrupt any time you wish to interject or something.

Lance: Ok, sure

Alex: Let’s just take a look at one example, the Gulf of Mexico situation. Many people have looked at it and responded to the superficiality of an “oil spill”. Later this awareness grew that it was literally deeper than the surface, that there are enormous amount of oil and toxins and something else going deep on under the surface.

We have as a matter of analogy, the contrast between superficial understanding looking at the surface of things and being able to be readily distracted by the officialdoms pronouncements of oil gone to beaches and the issues of beaches and it was all appearances to something deeper. Then the question was arguing over was it one well, two wells, three wells. Looking at whether it was this or that. Was it an accident or not. Then once that question comes up, various people start shouting that you know obviously, it is a conspiracy, it’s a false flag event. They start using all kinds of terms that have crept into the mainstream awareness ever since 2001. Even there, there was no deeper understanding of ‘where is the truth of the matter?’

When you start peeling this back and look at the larger picture, it is possible to see this as an actual act of war. But it is not an act of war of one country national flag, national interest versus another. It has dual aspects to it. One of them is very ordinary and can be traced to more ordinary things if one could really prove and show exactly who was responsible and who did this. There you can see the complicity of all different parties and it doesn’t really matter. Everywhere you look you will see both deliberate and quiet complicity.

Lance: um hum

Alex: Once people think about this, it can be seen in a fairly obvious way. Then confusion arises with many. They think, just as it was decades ago, that “they” means corporate owners or officialdom or as it is now preferred the controllers or powers that be. But even that is confusing to people: why would “they” want to set off a nuclear bomb, wouldn’t that affect “them” and “their” children? Why would “they” deliberately facilitate a Gulf of Mexico situation that potentially could destroy a major portion of the planet’s ocean etc? Wouldn’t that affect “them” also? You see, that is also where there is erroneously thinking.

The other aspect of it is in the invisibles, people who saw what was happening beforehand even or where we will just say variously levels of consciousness or entities or what have you that are not physical. They don’t have human bodies but they played a role on this planet and elsewhere for a very, very long time. And you can call them loosely a wide range of spectrums sort of “dark forces”. They are not material ones in the ordinary sense and this becomes a question, esoteric question, but it is a very serious one.

Very few people have really penetrated this in recent times. It is very important because if it can’t be seen from what I call a spiritual context, then all that remains is the ordinary. Then if you are only able to look at it from the ordinary and if, and this is a huge if, it were possible to even identify who really “gave the order”, who actually carried them out, you see, it would not matter one bit. It would not change anything, except to enrage a certain number of people who would probably look for the “pitchforks and torches”, of course, and then another portion of the population would become utterly demoralized. Then, of course, there would be the loyalists who would say “well you know it was only an accident, etc.” None of this is what it is what it is all really about as it is with the whole issues around what took place in September 2001.

Lance: hum hum

Alex: It is my contention that when you see this from the larger picture, that you can see two things: No. 1 there is no solution from the human level to these most horrendous problems presently, absolutely none, and that there could only be a spiritual solution. The other thing that you arrive at is that it will never be possible for humans to ever learn the truth. When I say truth I mean in the real who did what and when, kind of truth that is indisputable. No one will ever know that in this realm. It will not be revealed.

As soon as any serious proximity to those kinds of truths come close to moving beyond the small circles of people, who are fairly substantial now thanks to the Internet, but when it starts moving beyond the small portions of people who are more aware of these things, I mean the deeper issues, then there will be something to distract people. Oh there will be wild accusations that you know the Russians did it, the Israelis did it, oh no the Canadians did it. You know it is going to be one thing after another. It will be, depending on the need of either minor short term or major long term distractions, deliberately done.

The point is that if you use the word “the matrix”, which of course comes to us partly from science and partly now thanks to the movie series, that really does touches upon a profound question. So we have a situation where, where is the real truth, as just a matter of a hypothetical, if it were possible to inform the world or substantial portion of people of what really took place, what it was really all about, they would probably go, in addition to the response of anger, rage, into total depression, and they would also go a little mad (insane) because it raises the question of the nature of reality. I don't mean from a movie prospective, I mean it from an existential perspective.

When you start deconstructing these events, you start touching upon something that is a very dangerous and delicate topic for many people, even those that are very spiritually, politically - or rarely, spiritually & politically - aware individuals.

...That is, what the human personality rests upon has a lot to do with its memories. The vast majority of these memories are shared and they are manipulated. Essentially you can categorize them as a type of implanted memory of falsehoods.

Even though you may find in any x-number of people who would all agree that, yes, such and such event took place, everyone has a different perception or different interpretation and certainly different reactions to these things.

But it is more than that, because it begs the whole question of the nature of this reality, the entire nature of human existence, and the origins of the human species as it is presently views itself today.

That raises serious questions as to the nature of who each person is and the nature of reality. In a social context it becomes a very serious situation.

Think of World War II for example, or WWI. I wrote a short article on this recently. At the turn of the twentieth century, that being the early 1900's there was, due to a variety of reasons both manipulated by powers that be but also something that was allowed to take place and reflected a certain, we would call it, righteousness of the ordinary class of people, against what they would consider to be the owning class at the time. The attitude, especially in European/Western society and with the huge numbers of European immigrants coming into the United States, was that working people do not fight other working people on behalf of the owning class. This was the basic precept of class consciousness back then. You didn't know even need to know anything more. This became a fundamental ethic.

People today really don't understand this, of course, but this is the kind of perspective that gave rise to things like the Seattle general strike, etc. The powers that be were already in the process of slowly, you know because technology what it was back then, working towards world wars. Preparing such a situation may take matters months or a few years now, but back then would take many years or decades to really prepare. So bear that in mind that events moved slower then.

The basic point was you can't arm one respective population to fight one another if you have not altered through meme engineering, altered their perspectives and consciousness quickly. It took a while of course from this kind of very simple ethical class consciousness-type perspective. There had to be something to compel people. First there was patriotism, nationalism, this kind of thing. But really what did it, came about in World War II.

Prior to that, of course, was the guise of fascism in the world and how that became such a convenient thing to vilify. Suddenly individuals who may have been, just a decade prior, advocating peace, advocating anti-war, advocating this is not our war, changed to believing there is a really bad enemy in the world and yes, this thing is that has been implanted concerning democracy and everything and freedom of speech etc, etc. is under threat so now we have a larger global threat that we can put aside our differences, whatever they may be, to fight this threat. (PS note from ASK: Sound familiar? Cold War? War on terror? Alien threat? Asteroid threat?)

Now at the time, even though there were those with their suspicions, (few) nobody knew that it was basically the same group of powers that be that were creating, fostering and facilitating what would be called the class consciousness, the left wing or social revolutionary or communist or revolutionary perspective, and funding them. At the same time fostering, facilitating and funding what was then later to be called the tendencies toward (right wing) fascism which, after a time, was equated with brutal totalitarianism. Then of course it was also the same group of people that was essentially orchestrating the rise of modern day imperialism as a political economic system of capital.

It was all the same groups and this became more and more evident in countries like Africa where you have it in places like Zimbabwe, blocks under one group of perhaps led by under Chinese flag, and another group led under Russian flag and another group led under the US flag but all manipulated in the same way to control that territory.

Lance: hm hm

Alex: Depending on what was convenient at the time there would be two way alliances made so that eventually you know it would appear as though the US interest and the China interests decided to go against the Russian interests. Look who really dominates now. And this is just a simple example.

I bring this up because it is very important to see the appearances of things.

Lance: right

Alex: Those people who, and I was one of them many decades ago, specialized in the 60's in understanding the power structures and social structures and all of this and the theoretical and philosophical and economic underpinnings. This was my focus for positive change purposes and exposure (at the time).

These still never answered satisfactorily what the true nature of all this was. So even though you could deconstruct these events later and look at them, you still had a couple of problems. One, huge numbers of people believed, were led to believe, adopted the false beliefs and of course accumulated traumatic memories as a result of their experiences. ... to fight the “good war” against fascism.

Lance: right

Alex: Even if they didn't like capitalism very much because then that was the only alternative ideological paradigm that existed with people. Hundreds of millions of people died in the combination of global or international warfare over the 20th century. It is astonishing to tally it up. It doesn't matter how you add it up, the numbers are enormous. These are huge numbers of people who were tricked eventually into giving their lives and that of their families and everything for something that was totally false. What were they to do to reconcile this on their own minds?

Lance: hmm

Alex: Does that mean that their lives were lies? Unravel the thread a little further. Does this mean that everything that their parents taught them, were actually false? The things that they sacrificed, because that was imbedded in the consciousness of the masses of people, to sacrifice for the betterment of their children? That carries forward them: what they taught their children, many of whom, a small fraction of whom, you know opted to exit the system through counter-cultural perspectives and experiments in the 60's. This simple example is well enough understood as enough history is there. But even to this day, it is very disturbing for people to consider that they fought and died for complete lies.

Lance: Yes, oh yeah

Alex: Everything that they stood, that they were brought up to, when you review popular culture to which is also to those of us looking at this meme engineering to the extreme. People don't know that the meme engineering process consciously, deliberately, and systematic began around the start of the 1900's. When we go forward from all of this, you can see how any of these traumatic events in terms of humanity was concerned, were manipulated by ostensibly human agencies. The question really is, what is this that was perhaps orchestrating them?

Lance: Right.

Alex: This is one of the ultimate memes that has infiltrated into the spiritual/new age tendencies. It was never a movement. Is it that America was always a great hope and was the land of light and all of this kind of thing.

Lance: Right, right

Alex: It almost inconceivable to think, that as the first boatloads of immigrants were arriving in their wretched condition on the shores of this continent, that there already was the notion of the establishing essentially something that would be comparable to the “death star planet” of the Star Wars tales. This particular continent would become the headquarters for that. As it was developed over time, it too would become disposable which, was what we are seeing now. I will get into that briefly. This is what is very important to see beyond the social reality. It isn't so much to become angry or upset over this, rather it is to see what it truly it is all about.

Lance: Right

Alex: It is more important to take a look at some of the spiritual qualities to all of this. What has it all been about? We have very limited time this evening; I could talk for 2 hours on this topic.

Lance: Don't worry you will be back. Don't worry.

Alex: It is very important to skip ahead and get more of the bigger picture. In recent decades there has been an increased exposure of the role of various “outside” (non-human) agencies in the manipulation of the human species. We will set aside modern history for a moment here and get back to the Gulf of Mexico example – there is the other side of this dual aspect to it (GoM situation). There is a matter of truth to a lot of that. But even that, it becomes matter of pointing a finger -- which ET's are good guys which are bad guys, or which are the gods and lords of all the bibles, the religions, and all of these things. Were they all dark entities? Were they all ET's and were mistaken for something else? – perhaps something projected by humans. It is a mixture of yes and no to give a short answer to that. A few thousand years ago there were those who tried to retain some knowledge of the deepest mysteries of existence and pass them along to the present. Pretty much it failed. I mean, it is a tough task.

Lance: Right

Alex: There were many distortions. Very often these deeper truths were manipulated inadvertently or very deliberately and conveniently so that it suddenly the truth became the lies, etc.

Lance: Oh absolutely.

Alex: It is very important for people not presume that they (those from times past) got the whole picture. There were many things developed to help control humanity over the recent millennia. Religions were very, very important. They all emanate from the same sources. None of them are very differentiated. They were just different flavors. Not unlike fascism, communism, capitalism – the old belief systems all emanated from non-human sources but with a human agency helping to shape it, of course.

Lance: Right

Alex: You need to give it the real world touch after all.

Lance: Laughing

Alex: It was also anticipated at some point, there would be enough of the population that would begin questioning, looking outside the box and so perhaps those control system themselves would break down. So initially the solution was oh, let's create competing religions. But was no different than the forces that manipulated global warfare. And even that they knew that would wear thin with some, humans suspecting that all this is sounding like the same old deal and begin looking “outside the box”. So somebody very clever (within the ranks of the actual systems controllers) had to start thinking what could be created “outside the box”? So in the mid 1800's various modern alternate religions were created, one of which is of course, Theosophy, etc. that fed into many other things and some became foundational for the entire new age tendencies.

Lance: Right

Alex: You know it was well thought out. I got to hand it to them, you know. It was many many many different ways as more and more people would seek ways to look outside the box. Always something else but you never left the box. It is like an infinitely expanding maze and it starts looking like the Matrix movie.

Lance: Yes

Alex: Then of course, some people started looking at spiritual matters. Well, ok, this is beyond human. What else is there? Is there a way out of here? The notion of a transcendent being able to transcend this with spiritual consciousness. So there was a huge interest in consciousness and ways to transcend this reality knowing that there was something not right about it. Even though no one knew exactly what the problem was. So you know, from the 1960's also this is pursued not only by earnest and honest seekers but also by the powers that be and the agencies that were non human as well.

So we get to this stage in many there were very few spiritual teachers who even understood that this whole shell game that was going on and I am reviewing the work of a couple here who I have had a high regard for and they came the closest to at least knowing the difference. The question is what do they do with their work? Objectively, regardless of their intent, I am reviewing all this again twenty years later. You know fresh perspective, I guess.

Lance: hm

Alex: What may have been inspiring and helpful once, perhaps I need to look at it a little differently again. So this is a very tricky situation and as soon as you thought you understood something, something new was up there.

I would just say that those who have in the recent decades had a near death experience or similar kinds of experiences, some of them, and I am not saying all of them, a small percentage had very profound experiences, ones in which they were in connection, in contact with what exists outside of the fallen realms, to get back to your first point.

Lance: Right, right

Alex: Outside of this, and beyond this universe is immense, and this touches upon one of the greatest secrets of the mysteries 2050 years. It was deliberately withheld by those who did know and after all they even they preferred to ignore it and forget it themselves because it just irritated the heck out of them. That was that there really was a realm of creation that operated in cooperative quality of oneness that permeated everything. At the same time individuation and differences were not violent conflictual differences because of this quality of this (higher) oneness that permeated it. But here in this, the fallen sector so to speak, there was only that of these differences and they would be deliberately facilitated into conflict with one another.

Lance: Right

Alex: The question really then became, “to what end?” Or I should say to what end was all of this about? Because that really becomes the question of why? How did it happen? Because it is very confusing to people, and then of course the question is how do we get reconnected?

Lance: Right, right

Alex: That notion of having differences and there be oneness, and there not being a conflictual antagonism is quite remarkable to most people.

There began a process, in just the twentieth century with first one or two and then a few others and a little more and it would be like the cracks in the prison walls, so to speak. And they might be invisible ones that there would be and these were connections to outside (the fallen zone). So it began again, that there was again true knowing and realization that this is not how things are supposed to be.

But today most people who are spiritually minded are still under the false notion that that is how things are supposed to be and are deluded into believing that it is the nature of creation itself. Light and dark, etc., all of these opposites are taught that is how things work. The dynamics of opposites has been taught and encoded in philosophy.

Lance: Right, right

Alex: But it is not true that that is how things work. These ideas only reflect existence here and in other levels similar to here.

Lance: In the then also the idea that death is inevitable, that we age, that we're...

Alex: Well, that all becomes secondary. All those things become part and parcel supportive of all this. One of the most important things is, and this is an issue from thousands of years ago as some people who had connection to these deeper truths beyond everything. A set of beliefs were set in motion that indoctrinated people into believing that conflict of opposites is how things are. “You know there is always differences in good and bad, good and evil all this kind of stuff. That is the nature of reality. That is how “god” made it. May the best win. That’s how evolution works, etc.” The only conclusion that can from these falsehoods is that the highest level of creation must be insane if this is also something deliberate from “creator” and allowed to continue as it has. (heavily paraphrased for clarity)

Lance: Yeah, absolutely.

Alex: Well I am saying you see, even from the human perspective you can work this back and say that this is nuts! ...

However, you can intend to connect and intend to see things differently and from just intermittent moments then there can be a maintaining of this quality of intention. You don't need to be a “psychic” or something like that to do this. You can also begin to start deconstructing reality itself and the nature of your own existence. At times there will be breakthroughs and a transcendent “knowing” will occur. In some ways it becomes imbedded in your normal awareness so that it can't be anything other than that.

Lance: Well now. That is hmm, I am speechless, but lets tie this into something that seems to be of great concern to most people today. That is that the concept of, let's say, shifting of energy. There are various forms of this. We know that some of this is meme engineering and some of these are, they are infected with some kind of dark matrix but some of them have more elements of truth than others. You know, the idea that sometime around 2012 there are various cycles ending that we shift into the galactic plane, that we are going into a place that we never been before and/or that are corrective energies that are incoming. Some people refer to those as the pillars of celestial fires. Some refer to them as the transformation or transmutation of matter into spirit. And on and on. Let's bring this into present day focus which appears to be some kind of ongoing battle between the “good guys” and the “bad guys”.

Alex: Well, I think you know, there is not a battle going on. I know that for a period on and off over a considerable period of time up to recent years, there were different levels that you could call sort of a battle between those that might be compared to the teams rescuing miners trapped below --and those that were manipulating the miners to stay trapped by telling them everything is okay, see here is a new light bulb. Or you know, here is a new prisoner shopping mall that you can never leave. However you want to look at it. We have all sorts of metaphors for it these days.

(PS Note: There is perhaps more of a battle going on between various dark side faction – human and otherwise.)

From my sense, aware of what there was outside, I pursued this with greater focus over time. I think that it is important to recognize first of all that the dark forces so to speak that continued to dominate here overall had a “home turf advantage” you could say. They dominate the human awareness at that level and that of society. There is no question about that.

Lance: Right

Alex: It would be foolish to deny it, I think.

Lance: Right

Alex: So those that dominate here are in a state that they know things are changing. They are compelled like the fox and the scorpion fable, right? They are compelled to act a certain way. They can be as brilliant and clever as possible. But they can only pursue certain things, certain avenues. Otherwise they need to acknowledge their error. Which to most of those forces is nearly impossible. We are not talking about humans right now. We are talking about levels of consciousness and spheres of influence.

In order to acknowledge that, it is comparable to the human mind saying: “Oh my god, everything that I learned, lived for, risked my life for, my family has etc. has been a lie or has been wrong.” It is a simple enough gesture just to say, okay, I give up it is not working. But this is only possible when you reach a certain point in your awareness. So if you have been dominating for so long, on the whole you tend to prefer to maintain your position. However that could be.

So what is going is that it is possible --and we have in the ancient records evidence that, of course -- that there is also a “dark force correction” process. You know there are differences. It is like a collectives of people, you know, different opinions overall. How are we going to dominate the world? Everyone has their own ideas about this. Some of them say: “well, you know, I kind like Mesopotamia, some may prefer to have Asia, and so all right we will divvy up the world...” Can we at least a “gentleman’s agreement” type of thing?.

Well, it is a bit like that and so some of them may just say, you know this is not working, we are taking everything we can and everything, that we've done so far and stash it away for, a future time. Let's kind of clear the table. This is a mess because what we have set in motion has been very useful in many ways but at the same time it is unmanageable. So you have some of these dark forces that advocate global destruction.

At the same time you have the same dark forces, same elements of them, advocating peace, enlightenment, prosperity, all the nice sounding stuff. They will send their messiahs and their saviors and preach this to people. Why? Because it is an efficient self management system. There is less energy needed to maintain what they consider rightly “their creation”. To maintain them. So you have got a, you know, how would you like to this the consumer society or the wartime fascism? It is the same people running it -- as below so above, etc.. I mean, everywhere you look now this consistency of this as above so below and vice versa is so apparent. Once you start to understand the deeper patterns, it is like Neo in the Matrix who learns the difference. That is very important because many people can get tricked into this, either thinking ...one more movement, one more peace thing, one more treaty. Stop!

Lance: This is all...

Alex: It is well intentioned in an ordinary level. I would never dispute the intention but it is not possible from that level of knowing and existence to effect the kind of changes.

This then brings up a spiritual solution at the same time we have various dark energies creating what I've come to call false ascension, false spiritual enlightenment. Its purpose is to keep the energy trapped. To keep those people who represent maybe a more sophisticated knowing and a more persistent seeking, etc. to keep them trapped. Create another layer to the box. Another layer to the shopping mall. Let them think they left

Lance: Right

Alex: but they haven't. This takes the question what was this all about? The origins of the dark or the origins of evil, becomes one of most important litmus tests of any spiritual teaching or doctrines or what have you.

In addition to that of the first one, which is the biggest mystery of them all, that there really is another way of existence outside of this space of conflictual polarizations.

At this point there has been enormous effort made at many many many levels, over a long time, to truly understand what the frick happened here? It would be like headquarters sending in their best. And then they wonder, I haven't heard from them in a while. They send in another team. What happened to the first team? Well, it went native. Another group joined them, you know... (laughing)

Oh no, now what? They didn't hear from the next team, what happened, you know? Oh, we went native too. (laughing)

So on it goes, eventually somebody gets the picture and realizes that this is a serious situation and there is only going to be two ways to deal with this.

One is the extreme measures which are like hitting the “delete” button. The other, we are talking about from the cosmic creation level where the notion is that the 3D and associated levels are unsalvageable. They certainly seemed to be for a long time. And then the other perspective is what can we do to correct this? To do it so that good and bad, right and wrong, all can be for the higher purpose of spiritual evolution. And getting back on track of why creation to begin with.

Lance: Ok

Alex: Ok, I mean which of course, why humans? why creation? what is the purpose for all this? This is where we are at today. I feel at least that we an important threshold.

It is not about foolish dates of 2011, 2012, 2013. This is all a lot of silly stuff. That it coincides with this period is another matter. It is not a matter of dates. It is a matter that we are about 10 years past due roughly in terms what could of and should have occurred. It turned out to be one of the toughest situations in existence here. It was so very very important.

Where we are at today, the possibility exist to bring about such a quality of change that it would actually be as if all the worst that may be imagined or not imagined, never happened.

Everything set right, so to speak.

That is the correction energies that are coming from the very higher levels of creation right now, outside what we would call this fallen zone.

Lance: Ok

Alex: That is the extraordinary story that is taking place right now. It is coming in at the 3D level now, finally.

Lance: Okay, so are you are saying that this choice of the delete button is not going to be pushed, that the option has already past.

Alex: let's say it is on the table but “the hand” is away from it. It is an extreme measure.

Lance: Ok, so what we are looking at is some kind of corrective energy that will, once effected, makes all of this basically go away as if it never happened.

Alex: It's like your computer hard drive has got a series of intractable trojan viruses and you can get rid of one and another comes up and it's just been endless. These correction energies are not only the ultimate so to speak as an anti-virus inoculant. It is also a new operating system. It eventually alters the physicality of what it resides in to begin with eventually. Part of it is that so it can never happen again.

Lance: Well, let's hope so.

Alex: Errors can still occur, but they don't need to be so horribly destructive and self destructive also.

Lance: So what you are saying we wouldn't copying the virus into the new system.

Alex: That's the plan!

Lance: Ok, from today forward, how might we be seeing that playing out, because obviously the old systems and paradigms and the corrupt --the apples are all corrupt you can....

Alex: The momentum (of the dark) is still there. There is no question. It would be foolish to say otherwise.

Lance: All right. So how do we discern what is between, what is true and false and you know how to really move in alignment with the highest energies that are here now?

Alex: So you are asking for a few thousand years of accumulation? (laughing) I think the important thing is this. Rather than keep shopping around and pursuing one more piece of information, I think for those individuals who are at a state where they can say, "however it got to this point, I can see that we are not going to fix it from the level of knowledge, consciousness, energies etc. that we presently have". "There can only be some source, some additional help from outside. "

An individual may believe or acknowledge that they carry within them the divine spark of creation. If that is the case, let us let that become what my attention is, rather than the endless parade of suffering.

It is now at 7 billion, pushing 7 billion humans on the planet endless suffering. While it is wonderful to be of aid and those people who were recipients of relief can connect with that quality of caring and goodness that is there. The bigger question has to do with how to make this so that it "never again" is the case and we can move to whole new level of existence where this does not become endlessly engendered in one form or another and replicated like a bad virus.

That is really where individuals such as myself and others have put our attentions increasingly over the years and turn from some of these other things. We recognize all of these people out of their goodness are trying to help but that is not what really is going to make everything change. It would be much better to use that energy for creative purposes.

I think that the important thing is first all for those individuals who can at least, however, they may feel it or acknowledge it, is to put their intention and then their attention to welcoming these very high correction energies. Finding some means, even if it is a simple matter of being very quiet and not looking outside all the time but to find that quality because if there is something else going on. Like putting on their own oxygen mask. The old adage put your own oxygen mask before helping other people.

There is another quality and that is even if humans seem incredibly dumber and everything in every respect less discerning today. Something is happening over time where the human personality self, the human self is become more dense, more substantive. There are possibilities for the human self to develop and evolve into something very different, than perhaps it was possible 10,000 years ago or 100,000 years ago. At the same time, there is this other quality that you might call the higher being or the soul self that has this intimate connection and interface with the human self.

This is something we would have to continue at another time. This is an extraordinary situation.

However, there are those some from a place of goodness, some out of a place of ignorance, some from deliberate malevolence – who are facilitating this as part of this dark correction process.

(NOTE: That is, to promote the human self prematurely as the ultimate. The “human sovereign” --over all else. A rejection of the insane dark creator forces and a rejection of the higher true creation, higher oneness as well. This is one avenue of pursuit of one faction of dark forces for over very long time – one avenue through which they could expand themselves and their influence.)

(NOTE: From this we can see the potential for anew dark force pattern to emerge at some point in the future from the human self that is still in a type of separation from true Source.)

Lance: Even if the light forces, if the dark forces are basically, this is their real estate and we are their property...

Alex: Even if you were to accept that the dark created the human physically, the concept, the meta-template for “human” whatever you want to call it, has divine origins. Even if it was implemented here through what I call the “meat grinder” of the dark side...

...That now with all we may consider good and bad that has occurred in the entire sweep of human existence on this planet, the possibility exists for something extraordinary to occur that represents a higher level -- not a restoration -- but a higher level of attainment of what the whole purpose of creating a physical being that was sentient to begin with. And this is despite all of the horrendous things that some people have discovered that have been done to control, manipulate, basically mess around with this from day one.

Lance: Well we are going to have to segue out. Unfortunately we are just getting to the meat and the jewels here. We are going to have you back Alex, because this is terrific dialog and it is so important for all of us to begin thinking and communicating at this level. It really does. It is about peeling away the level layers and getting into really what is important and stop focusing on the B.S.

Alex: No one has asked me to try to squeeze this all into 45 minutes before.
(Laughing)

Lance: Mercury has as off for a few minutes. I will make this up to you for the next time. We will take up where we left off. Now I feel like the plane is kind of starting to take off. We will pick this up back and in the air and we will start taking this to where we can get some kind of good orderly direction going. I want to thank you so much, Alex.

Alex: Thank you.

Lance: I just love talking to you and tell people where your website is again. There is some terrific writing there. It is all free and freely available.
(www.pfcn.net).

Lance: Wonderful. Alex, thanks again and we will set a rematch.

Alex: All right have a good evening.

Lance: All right you too. Have a good night everybody. Bye, bye.

- END -